What Law CAN'T Do.
Mr. Ford's Plan Agley.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

(Copyright, 1928.)

THE big news is this: PRESIDENT COOLIDGE HAS SIGNED THE BOULDER DAM BILL, PROVIDING FOR RECLAMATION, FLOOD CONTROL AND WATER POWER AND THE USE OF THE COLORADO RIVER.

ONE HUNDRED AND SIXTY-FIVE MILLIONS will be spent as a starter; not much for a country so rich.

More important than money is the fact, now established, that the people have a right to use their own water power without asking permission of "big men in the business."

It was a hard fight and needed plenty of publicity.

MR. HOOVER'S plurality is fixed as 6,423,612. His total vote was 21,429,109. Gov. Smith's vote was 15,005,497.

Mr. Hoover's plurality about equals that for Harding and Coolidge. And like their pluralities, it represents the vote for prosperity and against control of the United States by European meddling.

THE United States tried to make the people of the United States dry by law. That hasn't worked very well, although many have hopes.

Germans propose to make Germany innocent of war guilt by law. That probably won't work either, but it is an interesting attempt.

THE Germans do not like to be called "responsible for the great war" and Nationalists propose a law to put in jail any German blaming Germany for the war or any foreigner blaming Germany while on German soil.

HENRY FORD proposed, and Wall Street disposed. Mr. Ford started a British company, to manufacture and sell his cars all over Europe. He wanted Britishers in the Ford concern, as sharers in the profits, and sold them 40 per cent of the company, keeping 60 per cent for himself.

Nobody in America could buy any stock from Mr. Ford. He wanted Britishers to have it.

WALL STREET had a different idea yesterday. Wall Street bought 481,800 shares of the new British Ford stock, putting the price up to $15.25. Mr. Ford sold it to the British for $5 a share.

They were satisfied, apparently, to make 200 per cent profit in a week. They may be sorry later. It's foolish to sell anything good, in America.

Meanwhile, Ford's well-meant plan to let the British share in his European profit for all time has gone astray as well laid plans will do.

THE Senate asks itself "shall we consider first the bill to give this country fast cruisers that it needs, or take up first the amiable pact that will make everything peaceful, until somebody starts a war?"

The right thing is to vote, first, for the cruisers, and if you must, vote for the peace pact afterwards.

We shall stand the consequences of a peace pact better if we have plenty of cruisers, fighting airplanes and submarines.

COL. PETER O. KNIGHT, of Tampa, able representative of Florida's interests, says: "Florida has an annual rainfall of 60 inches; no rain in winter when it does not need it, and is not compelled to pay anything for water rights."

Thus, politely, Col. Knight intimates that Florida is a better state for citrus fruits than California.

CALIFORNIANS, however, have something that Florida lacks.

California understands co-operative marketing, and effective advertising. Col. Knight urges his fellow citizens to organize co-operative sales and advertising as California does.

ONE thing should be borne in mind by those fortunate enough to own lands that can produce oranges, lemons, grapefruit, and intelligent enough to keep them.

Southern California, part of Arizona, part of Southern Texas, and South Florida contain all the land in America suited to citrus fruit growing.

POPULATION is increasing at the rate of 2,000,000 a year and wealth increases by twenty billions annually. Orange growing lands can never be enlarged. What is now sometimes a glut will change to a scarcity.

FOSDICK'S CHURCH BURNS

NEW YORK, Dec. 22.—(AP)—Smoke blackened granite walls and the steel skeleton of its spire were all that remained today of the nearly completed Riverside Baptist Church, to the construction of which John D. Rockefeller, Jr., has contributed large sums.

Damage, estimated at $1,000,000 was done to the new edifice which was being erected at a cost of $4,000,000, to house the congregation of the present Park Avenue Baptist Church, of which the Rev. Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick is pastor.

STARTED NOV. 20, 1927

Rockefeller purchased the site for the new church on Riverside drive and has contributed liberally to the building fund. The cornerstone was laid November 20, 1927.

The blaze, which raged for nearly four hours last night, was one of the most spectacular in Manhattan in years. Flames feeding on the interior woodwork and scaffolding, both inside and out, shot high into the air and were visible in New Jersey.

Origin of the fire, which was discovered by a watchman in the uncompleted structure, was undetermined. Five alarms were sounded to bring hundreds of firemen and a huge fleet of apparatus to the scene.

THREATENS TO SPREAD

Flaming timbers falling from the scaffolding and flying sparks driven in a brisk breeze from the river threatened to communicate the fire to surrounding buildings.

A Gothic plan of architecture, modeled after the Cathedral of Chartres, France, was employed in the design of the church which was to seat 2,500. The tower, which was contributed by Mr. Rockefeller and was to be known as the Laura Spelman Rockefeller tower in memory of his mother, was designed to hold the carillon of the Park Avenue Baptist Church, which with the addition of two bells will be one of the largest in the world with a total of 55 bells.

Goebel's Condition Still "Dangerous"

WICHITA, Kan., Dec. 22.—Although Art Goebel, noted flier, spent a "fairly restful night," his condition is still "very dangerous," according to physicians at Wesley Hospital here today. Goebel is suffering from pneumonia which followed influenza and an operation for appendicitis.

CONTROLLER HENDERSON SUCCUMBS

City Controller John H. Henderson, 62, lawyer and former councilman, died today in his home, 1238 Western avenue.

He had not been in his office in the City-County Building since last September and had been seriously ill with paralysis for a month.

CHOSEN BY COUNCIL

First chosen controller by his fellow members of council to succeed the late Eustace S. Morrow, he entered upon his duties January 2, 1922. He was elected by the people in 1923 and again in 1927.

Born in old Allegheny, September 9, 1866, he was educated in the public schools and at Allegheny College. He studied law with his father, Harvey Henderson, and was admitted to the bar in 1889. In the same year and several times subsequently he was elected to council.

HEIRESS' PURSUIT PLANE TUNED FOR RETURN TRIP

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 22.—Refueled and tuned up, the monoplane which brought David O. Meeker half-way across the continent in pursuit of Ruth McConnell, New York heiress, was awaiting orders to hop off on the return trip this morning—but not even the pilot knew who his passengers would be, nor was he sure that he would have any.

Meeker, who arrived here in the middle of the night, hours later than the girl, who came by train, spent Friday begging her to return with him to her eastern home because of her poor health.

Attendants at the Oakland airport said they had orders to have the plane on the runway at 8 a. m. The ship is cabin type, with a three-person capacity.

Dr. Meeker and Miss McConnell were reported to have had an "important conference" last night at an East Bay hotel.

Apparently their conference was a friendly one, as they were said to have danced together several times during the evening.

Both Meeker and Miss McConnell were reported in telephonic touch with Kenneth B. Coulter, wealthy New York broker, to whom Miss McConnell was engaged as late as two weeks ago, according to her aunt in Portland, Ore.

Miss McConnell is understood to have told both Coulter and Meeker she was firm in her decision not to return East.

MAN SAVES WIFE, 12 TOTS

Two fires today drove occupants of their homes out into the bitter cold of early morning.

Arriving home to find the place ablaze, Henry E. Recker, rear 332 Jucunda street, Knoxville, rescued his wife and 12 children, six of whom had just recovered from influenza.

Six other persons were driven from their home in a Squirrel Hill blaze.

As he returned from work, Recker, driver for the Pittsburgh Motor Coach Company, saw smoke issuing from the cellar. Rushing into the house, he roused eight girls sleeping on the first floor and the mother and four other children asleep on the second floor.

Bundling them in wraps and bed clothing, the father led and carried his children outside. They were taken in by enighbors. The fire was quickly extinguished by firemen with slight loss.

RESCUED CHILDREN

The children rescued who had been ill were: Naomi, 4; Dorothy, 5; Mary Louise, 6; Rita, 7; Marie, 9; Erma, 13. Others were Jean, 8; Elizabeth, 14; Robert, 11; Edward, 15; Woodrow, 16, and Irene, 5 months. Gilbert, 11, twin brother of Robert, was at the home of relatives.

The other fire was in the home of Attorney F. T. Weil, 5387 Northumberland street. Six occupants made a hurried exit from the building, after Louise Rath, cook, asleep on the third floor of the home, detected smoke. Miss Rath aroused Mary Gura, maid, also sleeping on the third floor, then awakened Mr. and Mrs. Weil and their two children, sleeping on the second floor. While Mr. Weil took the children, A. Leo Weil III and Richard Weil, to the home of Herman Koch, nearby, Mrs. Weil telephoned for firemen.

The fire evidently started near a furnace in the cellar and had burned slowly for some time before it was discovered, firemen reported. The Weil home, a three-story stone structure, was damaged $6,000, Fire Chief R. L. Smith estimated.

MONOXIDE KILLS MAN IN BED

Walter Young, 42, a roomer at 1408 Sedgwick street, North Side, was found dead in bed early today, a victim of carbon monoxide. A small hot plate was found burning in the room, according to the report to the coroner.

Young was found dead by another roomer, who attempted to awaken him in time to go to work this morning.

Roberts Estate Not To Exceed $20,000

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 22.—(AP.)—Value of the estate left by Theodore Roberts likely will not exceed $20,000 in the opinion of his nephew, Edward Roberts Higgins, who was the sole heir of the veteran actor.

Roberts was compelled to dispose of his once extensive real estate holdings during long illness that preceded his death a week ago, Higgins said. The most valuable property of the remaining estate is the yacht "See Bee," valued at between $9,000 and $12,000.

Hope Hampton in Grand Opera Debut

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 22.—(AP.)—Hope Hampton, stage and screen star, made her debut last night in the title role of Massenet's "Manon," with the Philadelphia Grand Opera Company. She was enthusiastically received.

Miss Hampton will sing with the Philadelphia Grand Opera Company as Mimi in "La Boheme" in February and probably will be heard in New York later in "Manon."

U. S. SPEEDS COLORADO PROJECT

WASHINGTON, Dec. 22.—Work on America's greatest engineering project—Boulder Dam—was under way today.

Scarcely was the ink dry on the document, which authorized the transforming of the destructive flood waters of the Colorado River into one of the nation's greatest benefits, yesterday, when Dr. Eldwood Mead, chief of the reclamation service, Department of Interior, who will administer the measure, directed that work begin.

He sent a rush telegram to R. F. Walter, chief engineer of the service, Denver, and directed him to take over the job. Walter was directed to gather immediately the engineers who are to undertake one of the greatest building projects of all time. They are to build a mighty dam which will subdue the dangerous river, protect the residents of the Imperial Valley of California from flood disaster and supply much needed power and water for arid lands.

LONG FIGHT ENDS QUIETLY

The long spectacular struggle to have Congress provide the means for the great dam ended simply.

With but five persons to witness him write this memorable chapter into the history of the west, President Coolidge signed the Boulder Dam bill, yesterday, as it came to him in the order of routine.

The President used three pens in writing his name. The first pen, with which he wrote "Calvin," is to be presented to George Young, publisher of the Los Angeles Times, and staunch exponent of the measure. His last name was written with two pens. One is for Senator Hiram Johnson and the other for Phil Swing, both of California and co-authors of the Boulder Dam bill.

Those with him were Senator Johnson, Representative Swing, Representative Addison Smith, chairman of the House Reclamation Committee, Dr. Mead and W. B. Mathews, chief counsel of the Water and Power Department of the City of Los Angeles and a member of the Los Angeles Board of Water and Power Commissioners.

Enlistments Halted In Paraguayan Army

ASUNCION, Paraguay, Dec. 22.—(AP.)—The government today ordered the army not to accept any more of the volunteers who began to flock to the colors when war with Bolivia seemed imminent. The government believed that further additions in the army would withdraw vital manpower from both the farms and industries.

Earthquake Shakes Nevada Mining Town

TONAPAH, Nev., Dec. 22.—(INS.)—Slight earth tremors were felt shortly after midnight at Eden Creek, 60 miles from here, according to residents of that mining camp. The disturbance lasted several minutes.

Warmer Weather Forecast; Fog To Remain

Warmer weather is in store for Pittsburgh today and Sunday.

The fog enveloping this section probably will remain, as there is no wind velocity to brush it away.

Snow which has been reported in other sections will not reach the city, at least not in any noticeable quantity.

Through the Ohio Valley cloudy weather was reported. Even the temperature of 30 degrees expected this afternoon will not cause the fog to vanish. Tonight the mercury will not descend below 20—perhaps not that low—and tomorrow there will be a rise in temperature.

The lowest official temperature yesterday here was 11 degrees above zero, coldest of the winter.

BANDITS FIRE AT CASHIER

CASHIER MURRAY COON

Cashier Murray Coon, Hays National Bank, shows the bag and $14,000 he saved today when he refused to hand it to two holdup men in front of the bank. Four shots were fired at him and his companion, Teller George Sille.

GUNS MISS AS TELLER SAVES $14,000

Two armed bandits tried to hold up Cashier Murray Coon, 34, on the steps of the Hays National Bank in Hays Borough early today and failed. Coon, target for a rain of bullets, refused to turn over a bag containing $14,000, and a woman's screams frightened the gunmen into flight.

The woman, Mrs. George Schmelz, 50, who lives near the bank, heard the four shots fired in Coon's direction by one gunman, and screamed.

The bandits forgot all about the money and hurried to the auto, in which his confederate sat at the wheel. They sped away.

CARRIED $14,000

George Stille, a teller, and Coon parked their car in front of the bank at 8:15 o'clock. They had come from an allied bank, the Monongahela Trust Company in Homestead, with $14,000.

Coon left the car first and was searching in his coat pockets for the key to the bank. He was standing on the front steps when one gunman rushed up from a machine, parked 25 feet above the bank, and leveled a revolver at the cashier.

"Gimme that money," the gunman ordered.

"Get out," Coon answered.

"Gimme that money."

"I'll hit you over the head with it."

The gunman pulled the trigger of his revolver. It jamed. He thrust it into a coat pocket and from a hip pocket pulled another. Standing five feet from Coon, he fired.

FOUR SHOTS

The first shot crashed through a bank window, eight feet from Coon. The second ricocheted off the steps

Bolivians Reported Marching; Denied

BUENOS AIRES, Dec. 22.—(INS.)—A newspaper report that 3,500 Bolivian troops are marching upon the Paraguayan town of Bahia Negra was denied today by the Bolivian legation.

Attaches of the Bolivian legation branded the report a mere rumor. They declared that the Lapaz government has ordered the colonial military forces in Chaco to remain passive and make no move because the Bolovian-Paraguayan situation is at present in the hands of mediators.

HALIFAX, Dec. 22.—(A.P.)—A dispatch to the Halifax Chronicle from St. Pierre today said that owners of the French trawler Pacificque feared the vessel, with its crew of 25, went down in a storm off Cape St. Mary. One of the ship's lifeboats containing a body was found yesterday at Placentia Bay.

JAWORSKI PLEA TO BE FOUGHT

The district attorney's office here will oppose any plan to save Paul Jaworski, condemned slayer, from the death chair, it was announced yesterday after a stay of execution had been granted.

Jaworski was to have died the week of December 31, but his counsel obtained a stay until January 30, pending a mental examination of the prisoner.

District Attorney Samuel H. Gardner let it be known that if Jaworski's counsel had a mental examination made, he also would ask for a lunacy commission, whose report would be used in rebuttal.

Recently a Cleveland commission found Jaworski sane. Jaworski's counsel contends the condemned man was partially paralyzed as a result of wounds received during a gun fight that marked his capture in Cleveland, and that a bullet wound in the head has affected his sanity.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 22.—(A.P.)—The House Merchant Marine Committee will begin hearings January 8, on the White bill to continue the life of the Radio Commission for another year.

COOLIDGE AWAY NEW YEARS

WASHINGTON, Dec. 22.—(A.P.)—President Coolidge expects to leave Washington for Sapeloa Island, off the coast of Georgia, some time after Christmas morning.

The departure may take place Christmas afternoon or may, possibly, be deferred until the following day.

The chief executive is still uncertain as to the time of the return trip and expects that he will remain on the island until after New Year's Day, omitting the customary public reception at the White House.

NORTHAMPTON, Mass., Dec. 22.—(A.P.)—Mrs. Calvin Coolidge, here on a visit to the sick bed of her mother, Mrs. Lemira Goodhue, will return to Washington not later than Sunday, Russell C. Wood, secret service agent assigned as her bodyguard, said last night.

Mrs. Coolidge visited her mother at the Dickinson Hospital twice. She said she found Mrs. Goodhue somewhat more comfortable.

NEW YORK, Dec. 22.—(AP.)—A congratulatory message from Commander Richard E. Byrd to Capt. Hubert Wilkins on his Antarctic flight traveled 20,500 miles to reach its destination yesterday, although the explorers are only approximately 2,000 miles from each other.

The message was sent through the New York Times Radio Station here after the Times had notified Commander Byrd, that Sir Hubert Wilkins flew over Graham Land and determined that it was an island.

"Hearty congratulations on your flight," Byrd's message to Wilkins read. "Don't forget you will find a warm welcome if you fly to our base."

U. S. BEGINS WORK ON BIG DAM

ber of the California-Colorado River Commission.

Chief Engineer Walter is also to begin at once preliminary surveys and studies of the many engineering problems, now that it has reached the stage of practical construction. While funds authorized in the bill signed by the President will not be available until all of the states concerned have ratified th legislation, within six months, emergency funds were provided by the Department of the Interior. This sum was made immediately available.

The complete project will cost $16,000,000, all to be repaid by the users of water and power. It will include a 550-foot dam at either Boulder or Black Canyon on the Colorado, a power plant at the same site and an all-American canal, linking the Colorado River at Laguna Dam to the irrigation system of the Imperial Valley.

The dam is to be one of the largest and most imposing in the world. It will create a reservoir of 20,000,000 acre-feet of water. The power plant will generate 500,000 primary horsepower and may develop a maximum of 1,000,000 horsepower.

The project largely concerns the development of the lower Colorado River, but Dr. Mead announced today that he would immediately begin a study for the development of the upper river and would call a conference of state engineers to discuss this at Denver next March.

PUBLISHER MISSES SIGNING

An almost pathetic incident in connection with the signing of the Boulder Dam bill was the failure of George Young to arrive here in time to witness the ceremony.

In the belief that the President would sign it Saturday instead of yesterday, he was rushing across the continent by rail. At Chicago yesterday morning he decided to take an airplane. He was forced down at Bethlehem, Pa. From there he was to go to Cumberland, Md., by motor and board a train for Washington.

Despite his keen disappointment in not being here when the bill was signed, he will receive his reward in the presentation of the gold pen which is to be presented as a token for his long support of the bill.

QUIZ TWO IN TEACHER'S DEATH

International News Service.

CARMI, Ill., Dec. 22.—A man and a woman were being questioned by authorities today in connection with the death of Anna Preher, 45-year old school teacher, whose partly clothed body was found in her home here late yesterday. The woman's head had been almost severed from her body.

Mrs. Maude Chalfant, city superintendent of schools, discovered the crime when she visited the teacher's home to ascertain why Miss Preher had not attended the afternoon session of the White County Teachers' Institute.

Mrs. Chalfant reported finding a pile of charred bed clothes in one of the rooms where a hole about four feet square had been burned in the floor, indicating that the slayer had tried to fire the house. The blaze apparently had burned itself out.

MOTIVE VEILED

After Sheriff Jesse Grissom, decided neither robbery nor attack was the motive, he took Isaac Austin, also a school teacher and former neighbor of Miss Preher, into custody for questioning.

The questioning of Austin was veiled in great secrecy, the officers refusing to divulge his statements.

A Mrs. Bachman, widowed sister of the slain woman, and said to have beeen estranged from Miss Preher, was also questioned by the authorities.

EVANGELINE BOOTH

SISTER MAY AID IN DEPOSING GEN. BOOTH

International News Service.

NEW YORK, Dec. 22.—Using an incognito and wearing civilian clothes instead of her usual Salvation Army uniform, Commander Evangeline Booth, head of that organization in the United States, sailed for London today aboard the White Star liner Olympic.

As head of the "reform" movement within the Army, Commander Booth sailed to attend the first meeting of the organization's high council, which may result in the removal of her brother, Gen. Bramwell Booth, as international head. He is seriously ill in London.

Commander Booth and her followers are determined to change the Army's constitution to eliminate clauses which not only give her brother sole control of the organization during his lifetime, but empowered him to name his successor.

The reformers have been trying, without success, for eight years to persuade Gen. Booth, now 72, to give up his autocratic powers.

The high council meeting, to be held in London January 8, was called as a last resort. The reform group is determined to depose the aged general and make Commander Evangeline international head. Under the present condition Gen. Booth would name one of his seven children as his successor.

HOME FAILS TO AROUSE YOUTH

MACON, Ga., Dec. 22.—(AP.)—Tom Scott Goolsby, 22, awoke this morning in a bed in the room in which he had slept for years, at his home where he resided during his youth, and surrounded by his parents and relatives, but he did not remember the familiar surroundings nor the faces of his nearest kin because he still is suffering from amnesia, which has afflicted him nearly two years.

Goolsby dropped from view July 23, 1927, and his parents, Dr. and Mrs. R. C. Goolsby, of Forsyth, Ga., near Macon, spent a large sum in a nationwide search, which ended recently, when their son was found and identified in Tyler, Tex., where he held a responsible position with a large firm and went by the name of J. C. Morrison.

When greeted by his parents and confronted by indisputable evidence of his identity, young Goolsby said he did not remember the faces of his father and mother and could recall no events of his life prior to a sudden awakening shortly after the date of his disappearance on the waterfront at New Orleans. Goolsby said he was suffering from a wound of the head when he became conscious.

A stranger befriended him in New Orleans, Goolsby declared, and suggested that he adopt the name of J. C. Morrison. The original Morrison, the stranger had informed him, was the son of a physician of Miami, Fla., and had been lost at sea.

Goolsby went to Texas later and resided in Tyler until his parents appeared. Dr. and Mrs. Goolsby accompanied their son to the home to spend the Christmas holidays, believing this would cause a restoration of memory, but the familiar surroundings had no effect upon him.

COUNTY CAUCUS INDORSES HESS FOR SPEAKER

The report that Aaron B. Hess, of Lancaster county, has been slated for Speaker of the House became a certainty last night when he was indorsed for the position at the caucus of the Allegheny county members.

The indorsement would not have been given had it not been for the fact that the "word" had been passed along by former State Chairman W. L. Mellon who, with his political associates, dominated the gathering. This is especially true because the delegation, by indorsing Hess, side-tracked the ambitions of James H. McClure, of Glassport, the present Speaker.

The indorsement was made over the protest of Representative George F. Howe, Clairton, who himself has been mentioned as a possible aspirant for the speakership.

"I think we should hesitate before making any indorsements," he said.

Howe did not press his protest and, when the vote was taken, did not oppose the indorsement of the Lancaster man. The vote was unanimously in favor of Hess, every one of the 27 Allegheny county members of the House being recorded in the affirmative.

MARCUS RE-ELECTED

McClure became speaker when Thomas Bluett, of Philadelphia, resigned to become judge. As chairman of the Judiciary General Committee, the Glassport man automatically became presiding officer. It is reported that he will be given his old chairmanship.

Representative Joseph C. Marcus was re-elected chairman of the delegation; Miss Helen Grimes, vice chairman, and James Wettach, of the North Side, secretary. Brief addresses were delivered by Commissioner E. V. Babcock, Mayor Charles H. Kline, Register of Wills Joseph N. Mackrell, and William I. Berryman, of the Union Trust Company.

WOMAN ROUTS THIEVES, HIT

Gamely resisting two holdup men who entered her confectionery, 2747 Liberty avenue, today, Mrs. Rose Freeman, 49, put the robbers to flight, but only after she had been felled by a blow on the head with a revolver butt.

Mrs. Freeman had just opened her store when two young white men entered. One leveled a revolver at her and demanded to know where the money was kept.

Backing away from the armed robber, Mrs. Freeman shouted lustily. The thug seized her. As she struggled he hit her on the head with the butt of his revolver. The two men fled, empty handed, according to police.

Mrs. Freeman was taken to West Penn Hospital suffering from severe lacerations. After her injuries were dressed she was able to leave.

DIVORCE FREES "HOBO KING" TO ROAM

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 22.—(AP.)—James Eads How, whose possession of a substantial fortune and choice of itinerants for companions combined to give him the title, "The Millionaire Hobo," was free today to lead his life among his migratory friends.

Superior Judge B. Rey Schauer granted a divorce here yesterday to Mrs. How and she was given custody of their 11-year-old adopted son, Holger. How was not in court and did not contest the suit.

JAMES EADS HOW

Mrs. How testified that her husband frequently brought "hoboes" home to dinner; that he informed her he preferred their society to her's, and that on their wedding trip he humiliated her by taking her to the dining car of a transcontinental train and then lunching on dry crusts, which he carried in a bandana handkerchief.

Last April 4, she said, he picked up his hat and coat and left after telling her that he was not going to live with her any more.

Mrs. How told the court that her eccentric spouse had an income of $800 a month on property left him by an aunt. Her testimony was corroborated by a woman friend, and announcement was made that a property settlement had been made out of court.

Mr. and Mrs. How were married in Chicago on August 16, 1926. How is known nationally as the founder of the "Hobo College" and Mrs. How told the court he had spent most of his time away from home in the interest of the college and "the American hobo."

Search of the homes is said to have disclosed portions of 500 pounds of meat stolen from the home of O. M. EAU CLAIRE, Wis., Dec. 22.—(AP.)—It was 17 degrees below zero here yesterday when Robert Werth looked out of a window in his home and saw a robin in the yard.

BANK HOLDUP IN HAYS FOILED

past Coon into the door he was trying to unlock. The third and fourth shots bounced off the steps—a few feet below Coon—into the air.

Coon was unimpressed. He held onto the bag.

Mrs. George Schmelz, 48, who lives a few doors above the bank, was on the first floor of her home. Hearing the shots, she rushed to the porch and unloosed a series of healthy screams.

The gunman then changed his mind. Losing all interest in the $14,000 bag, he raced 25 feet to his machine and gave the getaway order to his confederate, who had sat in the machine during the attempted holdup. It was a Hupmobile sedan.

Teller Stille, too, had stood by the auto which brought him and Coon to the bank. Helpless in the face of the revolver, he had been unable to aid Coon.

GET LICENSE NUMBER

Residents reported that the bandit car sped out of Baldwin street, on which the bank is located, out Glass Run road, which leads to Carrick. Pedestrians copied the license number and turned it over to county detectives.

Today was payday in the Homestead steel district, and Coon had obtained the money to cash the Christmas checks of the millmen.

Bandits held up the same bank in 1921, obtaining $50,000.

Shortly before noon county detectives announced they had picked up a definite trail of the bandits in Carrick.

The collection taken up for their benefit on Christmas day is one of their chief sources of income, furnishing maintenance for the ensuing six months.

KING IMPROVES, CHRISTMAS TO BE GAY

By HARRY R. FLORY

International News Service.

LONDON, Dec. 22.—King George apparently was continuing today his slow but steady march towards ultimate recovery from the illness which has ravaged his frame for more than a month.

Palace officials said this morning that His Majesty's condition was "unchanged." It was indicated that he had spent a fairly restful night.

England is now entering into its usual gay yuletide mood. The steady progress of the king during the last few days has lifted the pall of gloom which threatened to overshadow the coming holidays.

The physicians attending the king have yet to announce that he is definitely on the road to recovery, however.

Palace officials likewise continue reluctant to admit definite improvement in His Majesty's condition, despite eight consecutive bulletins construed as being favorable.

In circles close to the palace, it was said that no more definite statement could be expected until after the holidays.

With the arrival of Prince George from the United States yesterday, only one member of the royal family, the Duke of Gloucester, remains absent from the King's bedside. The duke is expected here Monday.

In high government circles it was declared that both the King and Queen Mary had expressly said that they did not wish His Majesty's illness to diminish the general happiness of the Christmas celebrations.

It is expected that a formal message to this effect will be issued to the nation at Buckingham Palace before Christmas Day.

Brutality Victim, Child Worries Over Santa

BOISE, Ida., Dec. 22.—(AP.)—Little Dorothy Clawson, who'll soon be three, doesn't know it, but Santa Claus has a better chance of finding her now than before she was taken from her parents yesterday, her tiny body a mass of bruises, scars and burns. Her only inquiry at being placed in the children's home was: "Will Santa know I'm in a new place now?"

A warrant charging her father with battery was sworn out on the complaint of investigating authorities who said the scars and burns on her face apparently had been made with a hot poker.

POSTAL SENDER PAROLED

James S. Braddock, 73, of Mt. Pleasant, Pa., was placed under a two-year parole in Federal Court when he pleaded no defense yesterday to a charge of sending through the mail a "defamatory" postcard to his sister-in-law, Mrs. Charlotte Hay Beard, 508 West North avenue.

It was his second offense. He had pleaded guilty October 11 to having sent a "poison pen" postcard to Mrs. Beard and had been fined $200. Both cards were mailed from Mt. Pleasant. Braddock is reputed to be a wealthy retired coal operator.

An odd feature to the indictment in the second offense was that he had served on the grand jury that returned the true bill against him. When the case concerning him came up for investigation he was excused from further service.

HOOVER BRAZIL TALKS TODAY END TOUR

By LAWRENCE SULLIVAN,
International News Service.

RIO DE JANERIO, Dec. 22.—The Hoover good-will trip through Latin-America is virtually finished. The President-elect and his party will sail on the Utah tomorrow afternoon, ending the first tour of its kind ever undertaken by any man elected to the presidency of the United States.

Mr. Hoover is well satisfied with his trip. He believes it has done much good in bringing South and Central American republics in closer touch with the United States and in strengthening the ties of friendship.

Members of the Hoover party think that the trip will open up new avenues of communication between the northern and southern continents, both in friendly intercourse and trade.

RECEPTION PLEASING

Much gratified by the spontaneity of the reception accorded him by the friendly Brazilian populace, President-elect Hoover began the last important business day of his six-week Latin-American tour today by having confidential conferences with various Brazilian officials and American representatives.

Mr. Hoover and his party are staying at the famous Guanabara Palace, which formerly was the home of the beautiful Princess Isabel, who died in Europe in 1923. The Princess was the last survivor of the royal family which ruled Brazil before it was proclaimed a republic.

The Guanabara palace is now the summer White House of the Brazilian president, Washington Luiz. The president moved out of the palace temporarily to provide the most comfortable residence possible for Mr. Hoover and his party.

CONGRESS VISIT SCHEDULED

Picturesquely situated, the palace overlooks a quarter of a mile of gardens patterned after those at Versailles. It is high up on the mountainside, overlooking the entire city and harbor. Nevertheless, its equipment is most modern. Mr. Hoover's temporary office is equipped with an American telephone, latest type of office-desk and other up-to-the minute conveniences.

Today is to be one of the busiest of Mr. Hoover's tour. He will deliver three important speeches during the day.

BLIND PROTEST BIG FUND FOR WORK SHOP

Assemblyman Matthew A. Dunn headed a delegation of sightless men and women appearing before Council yesterday to protest the granting of a requested appropriation of $35,000 next year to the Pittsburgh Workshop for the Blind.

Dunn declared the number of blind persons soliciting aid on the streets proved the workshop was doing less for the sightless than it did years ago.

He said there were 750 blind adults in Pittsburgh and that the workshop could find employment for only 65. Despite that fact, officials of the workshop discouraged voluntary aid to the unemployed blind persons, Dunn averred.

He reviewed the activities of police in arresting sightless persons soliciting aid on the streets and implied it was because workshop officials deceived Safety Director James M. Clark into believing they could find employment for the blind.

Charles Anderson inquired whether it would be legal to amend the city ordinance prohibiting soliciting on the streets so as to exempt blind persons. The consensus seemed to be that the exemption would not be feasible.

Dunn said the sightless adults were anxious and would gladly accept $15 a week as wages. He said the workshop paid single men $9 and married men $11 a week.

On motion of R. J. Alderdice, Mrs. Enoch Rauh, director of the Welfare Department, was asked to report on how many requests for work she received from sightless adults and what success she met in placing them.

HEARST PAPERS LAUDED FOR BOULDER DAM FIGHT

WASHINGTON, Dec. 22.—"Mr. Hearst, when he starts out for a program, usually finishes a winner," James J. Davis, secretary of labor, said about the Boulder Dam success.

"Mr. Hearst can crystallize public opinion as no one else can. A man who speaks to 20,000000 people daily through his newspapers wields a tremendous influence. It was that force which Mr. Hearst threw into the controversy over the Boulder Dam project, and he won.

"Their contribution to this victory is one of the many splendid services which Mr. Hearst and his newspapers have rendered to the people of the United States.

"A new dominion will grow up in the southwest, along the lower Colorado, and the Hearst newspapers deserve much credit for the victory."

JOHNSON GIVES THANKS

Senator Hiram W. Johnson of California, sent the following message to the Los Angeles Examiner:

"The last chapter in the long struggle for the Boulder Dam project was written this morning when President Coolidge signed our bill. A decade of heart-breaking effort finally is crowned with success.

"To you, Mr. Hearst, and the Hearst press I gladly make my acknowledgement of appreciation and gratitude for the incalculable service you have rendered. During all the time we have been striving, you have been a tower of strength to us, ever presenting the cause, and never failing it.

"The passage of time, demonstrating as I know it to be, that this undertaking upon which we now embark is the greatest constructive work of our generation, will but accentuate the great service you have done, and emphasize the debt Southern California owes you."

COPELAND JOINS

Senator Royal S. Copeland, of New York, said in a message to the New York American:

"Except for the sustained effort of the Hearst papers the act would have failed. It is right and proper that the country should know this. It would be sad indeed, if those who are to benefit should overlook this fact. I gladly bear witness to what has been accomplished by these papers.

"When the work is complete there will be millions of persons to rise up and call blessed the spirit of this newspaper organization."

Frank Flint, president of the National Boulder Dam Association, said:

"Putting over Boulder Dam, the Hearst papers are responsible for one of the biggest achievements in modern times."

NYE'S CONGRATULATIONS

Senator Gerald P. Nye, of North Dakota, chairman of the Senate Public Lands Committee, said:

"During this long-drawn-out battle one of the outstanding staunch supporters of the Boulder Dam project has been the Hearst group of newspapers. They are to be congratulated on the results thus obtained."

Senator Key Pittman, of Nevada, said:

"The Hearst newspapers have done a wonderful service to the country in general and the Southwest in particular."

Senator Tasker L. Oddie of Nevada, declared:

"The Hearst newspapers by their work have rendered a magnificent service to the southwest, to the West and to the nation as a whole. It was a difficult fight under most trying circumstances. The Hearst newspapers held on and fought through to the end in spite of the obstacles placed in the way of this great measure."

Senator Charles W. Waterman of Colorado said:

"The Hearst papers are to be congratulated upon their great work in helping to solve the Colorado River controversy."

POWER TRUST BEATEN

Senator Samuel M. Shortridge, of California, said:

"Fearlessly and diligently the Hearst press has advocated the building of Boulder Dam and has acquainted the people with the fundamental soundness of the greatest development scheme proposed in our time."

Senator C. C. Dill, of Washington, said:

"Arrayed against the Boulder Dam project there were the billions in money and vast influence of the power corporations. The fight they made and the false propaganda they published in friendly or careless newspapers would have killed it off if the Hearst newspapers had not been so alertly and ceaselessly engaged in exposing and overcoming that destructive campaign."

According to Police Chief Port Moses, of McCandless township, the three under arrest went to the home of their other brother, James F. Kelleher, in Grant avenue, McCandless township and attacked him early today. Leonard Kelleher, another brother, who lives with James, came to his rescue wielding a milk bottle and put the three to route.

The men had entered the home by climbing through a second-story window, and in fleeing they were forced to leave by the same route.

Chief Moses followed the three to Federal and Ohio streets, North Side, and placed them under arrest. Their hearing will be tonight before Justice of the Peace Eugene Mehrlich, of Millvale.

HARRIS TO LEAD VOTE MACHINE LEGISLATION

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 22.—Senator Frank J. Harris, of Pittsburgh, will handle the legislation that will enable the voting machine amendment, approved by a majority of 400,000 votes at the recent election, to be put into effect by the municipalities of Pennsylvania.

This was decided at a conference in the office of Thomas Raeburn White, vice president of the Pennsylvania Elections Association. In addition to Senator Harris, those present included Simon T. Patterson, counsel for the Allegheny County Elections Association, and Thomas J. Walker, secretary of the Philadelphia Committee of Seventy.

Senator Harris, when the Legislature opens in January, also will be in charge of other bills sponsored by the organizations participating in today's conference, it was reported.

"At the conference today we received a great deal of information from other states where voting machines are now being used," said Senator Harris after the meeting. "Of course, it is too early yet to discuss any provisions that will be incorporated into the measure, but Mr. White will begin work upon a rough draft at once.

PUBLIC MEETING SET

"After this draft is completed, we will meet again, and sometime during the recess of the Legislature in January, there will be a public meeting in Harrisburg to which we will invite organizations, politicians and individuals interested in voting machines.

"From the suggestions we get at this meeting we will be able to draft finally a bill for submission to the Legislature. Other election reform measures will be discussed at the public hearing and a program worked out.

"I wish to emphasize that our interest in the voting machine bill is not in the nature of a crank movement. We are going to appeal to the practical political side of the state organization and we will, of course, have the benefit of the fact that public opinion put over the voting machine amendment at the recent election by a tremendous majority.

"That should greatly strengthen our hands."

Mr. White said that the first rough draft of the proposed measure should be in shape during the first week in January.

CANARY BIRDS CAB MAN'S HOBBY

John Shaw spends his mornings with his radio and canary birds, and the afternoons and evenings in a cab. Which he likes better, he won't say. He likes both.

But he will insist that cab-driving isn't always fun, whereas, since raising and teaching canaries to sing is a hobby—that is fun.

He started in a modest way, with a small number of birds, and became so interested in one pair that he began to study them. The marvel of their song, intrigued him and he began to study how to breed and develop them.

He says his biggest help is the radio.

Young birds, he believes, don't always have the courage to begin. They chirp around for a while, listening to Bobbie, the head man in the bird family who is the vocal teacher, and the various radio singers. Then they take their choice and pattern their voices after the one they like best.

And there's a difference in birds. Some have voices with six or eight notes. The ordinary good bird has a dozen note-range. Bobbie, the teacher, has 18 notes, and, Shaw says, there is a record of one canary whose owner claimed 250 notes for him. Which is some claim.

Shaw lives at 6004 Bethel way, East End.

News From Hollywood Combined With Christmas Bill Announcements

WESTERN PICTURE VANISHING LIKE PERIOD WHICH IT REFLECTS ON SCREEN

By REGINA CREWE.

(Copyright, 1928, By King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 22.

IT WOULD seem as though the "Western" pictures which have so long delighted our less sophisticated movie audiences might provide an ideal spot for sound synchronization. Indian whoops and cowboy whoopee, the bark of six-guns, even what the Englishman called "the 'ammer of 'orses 'ooves on the 'ard 'ighway," would seem to be thrill provokers meriting attention in sound pictures. But it is a coincidence that with the advent of the un-silent drama, the "Westerns" are vanishing from our ken like the old West itself.

Col. Tim McCoy, who slew redskins for Metro, has completed his contract, and the cubs of the Metro lion are reported through with the great open spaces. The same goes for Paramount. Hoot Gibson is planning aviation pictures. Tom Mix has only one more western to do under his present contract. And they say he will not sign up again. First National and Ken Maynard seem to be getting along nicely. But he seems to be the last of the prominent cowboy stars to survive in that capacity. As to Mix, the daddy of 'em all, what Tom is planning for the future only Tom knows. And maybe not even Tom, himself, has quite decided. To say nothing of Tony. One thing remains true. The passing of "western" pictures will take something typically American out of the life of boyhood.

Marion to Make Two Versions

MARION DAVIES will make two distinct and entirely different versions of "The Five O'clock Girl," according to the Metro Plein-potentiaries. The first will be a silent version of the story. This will be adapted to movie technic, with all the various artifices of the films utilized to tell the tale. Then Marion will begin all over again on a sound and dialog "Five O'clock Girl." This will be a literal translation of the musical stage play. The method of producing it will be more closely akin to that of the theater than to that of the screen. See them both when they reach your theaters. They will offer a marvellous opportunity for you to compare the different values in the sound and silent cinemas.

Most of the studio quit work the other day to laugh at the antics of Sam Hardy and Raymond Hatton in their talkie sketch. "When Caesar Ran a Newspaper." These two begin to look like another sure-fire comedy team. They will follow their newspaper farce with another called "Dear Vivian." Incidentally, Arthur Caesar, Hollywood's latest Broadway import, wants it understood that the Caesar in the story is Julius, and not Arthur.

Following the success of his whisper test, Raymond Griffith has been signed for a talkie sketch called "Post Mortems." It is the facial yarn of a couple of bridge-playing cracksmen, who forget business to play a rubber with the couple whose home they have entered to burglarize.

Little Want Ad Finds New Face

THERE always is the never-ending hullabaloo about "fresh faces for the films." To hear them tell it each of the producers is scouring the country with his little lantern, like a modern Diogenes, seeking beauty and talent. Why such devious methods are necessary is one of the mysteries of Hollywood. And this thought occurred to a Fox casting director. By the simple expedient of putting an advertisement in the classified section of the Los Angeles Examiner enough talent was secured to furnish an entire new crop of stars. Simplicity is most efficient after all. The girl selected will be seen in "Nobody's Children."

January will give June a close run for matrimonial honors in Hollywood. The latest to name the day—a January day—is Ruth Roland. Ruth is the millionaire Miss of the film colony. She made it in real estate. As "Fatty" Arbuckle says, "real estate is what Ruth Roland was buying when the rest of us bought gin"—or words to that effect. The man in the case is Ben Bard. He and Ruth have been "keeping company" for a long time.

Hollywood turned out in its best bib and tucker for the one-act plays presented by the Writers Club. There were four. Two funny—two serious. Oh, Very serious. Carmel Myers and Raymond Hatton scored the greatest hit in "Spoils of Lust," a satire on the talkies that had the audience in stitches. Carmel was lovely in the act, and even more lovely in her off-stage costume. It is pretty nice of these busy players to devote their scant leisure to rehearsing and playing in these entertainments just to amuse their friends.

Air for Hicks; Page Welcomed

WHAT'S in a name? Nothing perhaps. But just the same Kenneth Hicks spent a lot of time in Hollywood trying to get a foothold on the ladder of film fame without making much progress. A wise youth, he journeyed back to Long Island. Now, under the name of Paul Page, he has been signed to a five-year contract. For his debut he has been awarded the leading masculine role in "Speakeasy." Paul is a distant cousin of Jimmy Hall and bears a family resemblance to him. Here's wishing him as great success as Jimmy has won.

Hollywood hiking: Gloria Season at the "Moniart"—Harold Lloyd, too—It isn't often these busy players have a chance to slip away from the studio for luncheon—Marie Prevost telling about her siege with the "flu"—Jetta Goudal still wearing her hair in a "bun"—June Collyer departing for New York, home and mother—Lee Patrick proving that she can speak French, German and Italian—Lya De Futti actually speaking these languages—Phyllis Haver asserting her claim as one of the girls who graduated from a Hollywood high school into pictures—William Boyd telling how he had to quit school in Tulsa, Oklahoma, and dig for a living—Little Junior Coghlan, whose father Joe Coyle, is an alderman in New Haven, Conn.—Mary Nolan "confessing" to a fan magazine writer.

MELODRAMA IN COMING BILLS

"The Trial of Mary Dugan," which A. H. Woods will present in the Pitt next week, is by Bayard Veiller, who also wrote "The 13th Chair" and "Within the Law." Many critics hold the opinion that "The Trial of Mary Dugan" is the most unusual mystery play ever written. The original cast, with Ann Harding in the role of Mary Dugan, will be seen here. Matinees will be on Christmas Day, Thursday and Saturday.

Opening Christmas Eve, Monday, Ned Wayburn will present in the Nixon his own personally staged "Gambols," a musical revue with an ensemble of 100, including 50 dancing promenaders. There will be two matinees, a special Christmas matinee on Tuesday, and the regular Saturday matinee.

The advance seat sale, it is said, points to capacity houses in the Alvin next week, where Mary Eaton and Oscar Shaw will appear in the Cinderella musical comedy, "The Five O'Clock Girl," opening Tuesday night. An extra matinee performance will be given Thursday, in addition to the regular Wednesday and Saturday matinees. The engagement is limited to five days.

Fannie and Kitty Watson are making their return to vaudeville in the Davis next week, with a new supply of laugh material. The Watson Sisters have long been known as comediennes. They have international reputations as entertainers.

Singer's Midgets, in a miniature revue, will provide the stage entertainment in the Penn next week. The screen feature will be Joan Crawford and Nils Ashter in "Dream of Love."

"The Barker" will be in the Stanley next week. Milton Sills is starred as the ballyhoo artist with the Col. Gowdy Shows, and Dorothy Mackaill is leading woman.

Collegiate prison football and a warden's pretty daughter provide the fun-making impetus behind "Brotherly Love," next week's synchronized screen comedy in Loew's Aldine, with Earl Dane and George K. Arthur.

"Waterfront," co-featuring Jack Mulhall and Dorothy Mackaill will be the screen feature at the Grand next week.

Elsie Rayner and Ed Jordan play leading roles in Jack Reid's Record Breakers which comes to the Academy next week.

The Photophone feature in the Harris for the three days beginning Monday will have Clark and McCullough in a talkie skit, "The Toilers," with Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., as the star, will be the feature presentation. There will be four acts of vaudeville.

Brilliant cafe scenes in Paris will be seen in "Adoration," starring Billie Dove, which has been selected to open the Enright Theater, the Stanley Company's new house in East Liberty, Friday night, December 28. The new theater will seat 3,500 and is one of the finest motion picture houses in the United States.

For the first three days of next week the Sheridan screen will offer "The Cavalier," featuring Barbara Bedford and David Torrence. Four acts of Keith vaudeville and other attractions will complete the bill.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

THE FOLKS UPSTAIRS

By L. LAMAR MATTHEWS.

"THAT darn radio!"

Hubert Wells ground out the words between his teeth. But his wrath had no effect upon the loud speaker over his head. It boomed and roared and squawked right on, just as it had done every day and every night for two weeks.

At 10 o'clock Hubert retired. At 11 the radio was still thundering forth its melodies and exhortations.

"I won't stand it," Wells shouted, springing out of bed and seizing the house phone.

"Connect me with apartment 64," he said to the operator.

A woman's voice answered his call.

"Will you kindly cut off that radio and let me get one night's peaceful sleep?" he demanded.

"Why certainly," came back the answer, and the noise stopped immediately.

Hubert went back to bed, sure that he was quite justified in his complaint yet somehow ashamed of his outburst. The woman was so confounded meek about it.

Mr. Wells had not been sleping much of late. It was not entirely the fault of the radio either. A pair of soft brown eyes, a sweet piquant face, a vivid personality, a brave little figure in a saucy sport coat had something to do with the state of mind that kept him awake. Every now and then he encountered "The Girl," as he called her, but he had never spoken to her outright.

She usually rode home on the same stret car that brought him from work in the evenings. They had met so often at the car door that they began exchanging telepathic greings. A smile, a suggestion of a bow from her; a lift of the hat, a grateful acknowledgement from him. That was all; but he had come to look forward to this casual meeting. More than once he had let his car go by, hoping that she would be on hand to ride the next one. He had no idea what her name was nor where she lived. He surmised that she dwelt somewhere in his own neighborhood. She always left the car a block above his own station, but he had never seen her except on that homeward bound street car.

This was the first girl who had interested him since he lost his young wife, two years ago. And his interest had developed into a sort of obsession. He wanted to talk with that girl. He wanted to kiss her. He wanted her in his arms.

He saw her four times during the week following his outburst, but she did not glance his way. The change in her attitude puzzled him and made him unhappy.

Sunday came. The radio upstairs disturbed his blessed morning sleep — hymns and a sermon this time.

He dressed and went out. He would come back later and read. His papers and books, his easy chair and open fire, the peace and rest of home had been his only joys for many months.

Soon after his mid-day meal Hubert re-entered his apartment and settled himself for an afternoon of reading. Ten minutes later the folks upstairs started their radio.

He endured it until almost dark. Then he went for a walk. It was damp and chilly out of doors. He wanted to spend the evening at home. So he came back after dinner, picked up a novel and started to read.

That radio again! On and on and on it went for hours. It seemed to him that it had never been so blatant, so full of squawks and rumblings. A particularly loud blast proved the last straw. He jumped up, threw down his book, jerked on his coat, dashed out into the hall and up the stairway to the apartment above his own.

He found the bell and gave the button a vicious push.

A white-haired gentlewoman, with an old-fashioned shawl around her shoulders opened the door. Hubert noted the walking stick on which she leaned and his heart smote him. How could he say what he had come to say? He couldn't.

"I beg your pardon. I think I am at the wrong door," he lied. "I must have made a mistake."

"You'll have to speak louder," said the quavering voice, "I'm a little deaf."

He raised his voice and began again.

"I beg your pardon I think—"

But the old lady's attention was elsewhere.

"Here comes my granddaughter now," she exclaimed joyfully. "You'd better talk to her. She can understand you."

Hubert turned and faced—THE GIRL.

He took a step forward.

"You!" he said aloud.

The smile left Marian Blaine's face. She drew herself up haughtily. The packages in her arms began falling.

"I hope we haven't annoyed you again," she said icily. "I had to work today and I forgot to caution my grandmother about the radio."

"Please forget that," he begged. "I had no idea you lived up here."

"Won't you come in?" invited Grandmother, embracing them both in her cordial smile.

"Yes, thank you, I will," stated Hubert a little defiantly. He knew The Girl would not have invited him in. But he went anyway, carrying the recovered packages and placing them on a table.

"I was just playing the radio," Grandmother babbled on. "Since Marjorie bought it for me I'm never lonely any more."

Hubert sat and talked for a while with old Mrs. Blaine, and at last Marjorie condescended to join in the conversation.

"Grandmother is so deaf she doesn't realize how loud this radio sounds," she said apologetically, "but she will only be here a few weeks longer."

"Marjorie only had one room when I first came," Grandmother was determined to tell all she knew. "But she thought we ought to have more room while I was visiting her. That's how she came to move into this apartment."

It was long afterwards that Marjorie told Hubert the real reason for her moving into that apartment. By that time she was wearing his platinum band on her ring finger, so she didn't mind telling him the truth.

"I wanted to maye friends with you. That's really the reason I moved into the same house with you," she laughingly admitted.

"Well, Marjorie," he said after a moment's contemplation, "why was it that you continued to get off the street car a block from the house, after you moved? I've always wanted to know that."

"To buy groceries, silly," she answered. "I bought our food at the corner grocery on my way home."

"And why was it that you wanted to make friends with me?" he teased.

"Because I've been crazy about you from the first moment I laid eyes on you," she declared. "In fact I think I have loved you all my life."

"Bless your dear heart," he answered, "you'll never know how much I needed your love."

The Sun-Telegraph Fifteen Cent Pattern

A STYLISH FROCK FOR AFTERNOON OR EVENING WEAR.

Lace dyed in the new shade of blue was selected in this instance. Black transparent velvet is also very effective, or velvet in the new pastel shades. White satin is suggested also. The dress may be finished without the bolero and sleeves, or sleeveless with the bolero, or with sleeves and without the bolero. Long waist sections fit the figure closely and form a panel over the center of the front. Flare skirt sections lengthen the dress and join the waist in curved outline. The bolero is shaped in a split curve at the lower edge of the front.

The pattern for this unique style is cut in three sizes: 16, 18 and 20 years. To make the dress as pictured in the large view, for an 18 year size, will require 4¾ yards of 39-inch material. Without bolero and sleeves 3¾ yards will be required. The width of the dress at the lower edge with fulness extended is 3 yards.

COUPON.

This pattern will be sent on receipt of 15 cents (silver or 2c and 1c stamps) Make number, name, address, etc., plain. Send to Pattern Department, The Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, Pittsburgh, Pa.

NEWSIES AWAIT BIG HOLIDAY FROLIC

Thousands of Pittsburgh's "newsies" are counting the hours until next week when the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph and the management of Loew's Aldine Theater will be their hosts at a great four-day party at the Aldine Theater. The frolic begins Monday morning and will be continued Wednesday, Thursday and Friday mornings.

A program as varied and fun - provoking as any ever shown in Pittsburgh has been arranged by the theater management. "Brotherly Love," comedy picture, syschronized with music and sound effects, starring Karl Dane and George K. Arthur, is the feature. Dane, as the prison guard, and Arthur, as the manager of a ladies' beauty shop, promise to do such antics on the screen as will make the boys roar with laughter. That inimitable pair of musical comedy stars,, "Van and Schenck, in "Singing Songs As You Like Them," a Metro Movietone, is another headliner.

Val and Ernie Stanton, two clever comedians, are billed in a song and comedy act, entitled "English as She Is Not Spoken." Then there is Gus Arnheim and his Cocoanut Grove Orchestra. Gus and his musicians come direct from Hollywood where they have been "jazzing" things up among the screen folk. A Fox Movietone News reel, showing news events of the world in sound and motion, conclude the program.

Tickets for the show can be obtained through the Sun-Telegraph Circulation Department and news agents. Admission is only by ticket. Blue tickets are for Monday, pink for Wednesday, white Thursday and yellow for Friday.

NEW ORLEANS, La., Dec. 22.—(AP.)—Gov. Huey P. Long has indicated that he will not interfere with the double execution set for January 5 of Ada Bonner Lebouef and Dr. T. E. $250,000 Heart Balm Asked of Clubman, 68

CHICAGO, Dec. 22.—(A.P.)—A damage suit for $250,000, charging breach of promise to marry, was filed yesterday against Oscar Spindler, 68, wealthy manufacturer and clubman, by Mrs. Louise Milosz, 30. Spindler's first wife died last May.

Newsies' Star

KARL DANE

Karl Dane, screen comedian, will make 5,000 Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph "newsies" roar with laughter as a grid star in the comedy, "Brotherly Love," one of the feature attractions at the Sun-Telegraph's Christmas theater party at Loew's Aldine Theater next week.

SALE OF SEALS ENDS TONIGHT

The public sale of Chirstmas seals by the Tuberculosis League of Pittsburgh will close tonight. Large returns are expected today by those in charge of the many booths through the principal parts of the city.

Receipts are used to carry on the work of the league in Allegheny county. Those in charge of the campaign have asked that a return be made as soon as possible by those who have received seals through the mail. If it is impossible to purchase the seals, they may be returned in the addressed and stamped envelope which was enclosed with the seals.

Company Dissolved

Judge James H. Gray of Common Pleas Court has signed a decree dissolving the J. K. McKee Company on petition of Attorney T. R. M. McCready.

17 NEW TRAFFIC BUREAU JOBS HELD UP

Council deferred action until next Thursday on a request from the Bureau of Traffic Planning for 17 new jobs with yearly salaries totaling $31,976, as a result of a hearing yesterday before the budget committee.

The bureau's total appropriation request is $58,276.

Burton W. Marsh, traffic engineer, explained that the requested employes were to maintain the new electric traffic control signals in East Liberty and those proposed for the downtown section.

Robert Garland, chairman of the Finance Committee, found the time when the new employes would be needed was undetermined. He proposed setting up the payroll in a contingent fund for use when the employes were hired, to forestall their employment months before they were needed.

John S. Herron inquired whether employes of the Duquesne Light Company whose regular duties are the maintenance of street lights could not perform similar service on the signal lights. The Duquesne Light Company will furnish electric current for the traffic signals.

Marsh replied in the negative, saying the proposed employes must be men technicaly trained for signal light work.

INSTALLATION DELAYED

The signal lights were authorized by Council last February when it was promised by the traffic bureau they would be installed in November.

After numerous delays from various causes, bids for the fixtures were opened a week ago by Safety Director James M. Clark and hope ran high that installation would begin early next year.

Nevertheless, Clark later rejected all bids.

Marsh was a reluctant witness in discussing the rejection of bids and his unwillingness to answer questions puzzled members of the Councilmanic budget committee.

President James F. Malone wanted to know if there was any conflict between bids and specifications. Marsh replied he believed not but that some of the clauses in the specifications would bear clearifying.

Malone asked if the difference between bids and specifications justified the rejection of all proposals and Marsh said he preferred that someone else answer that question.

W. Y. English inquired if there was any favored bidder and Marsh said there was not to his knowledge.

Marsh finally was requested to study his new employe schedule with the objective of reducing the number and to report his recommendations next Thursday.

Local Pictures Predominate in tomorrow's color gravure

Most of Sunday's Color Gravure Section is devoted exclusively to pictures of a local nature. There is a full page of snaps at the Highland Park Zoo. Hunting scenes in the surrounding mountains, unusual views of the city, old churches, prominent Western Pennsylvanians — all in this review that has so quickly become Pittsburgh's most popular Pictorial Section.

A picture that should be framed and hung in the nursery—a bright, colorful reproduction of Santa Claus in his shop, finishing his year's work at toy making. Every part of it, from the snowy background to the minutest doll, will interest the youngsters. Be sure to see it Sunday.

Two Outstanding Paintings

"Declaration of Independence"

By John Trumbull

An extremely interesting painting by an interesting artist. John Trumbull, who served as an officer on Washington's staff, incorporated into this painting the portraits of forty-seven men who signed the Declaration of Independence. Its beauty is rivaled only by its historic importance.

"Along the Cheat River"

By A. F. King

A colorful, refreshing landscape painting, the scene being a few miles above Cheathaven, West Virginia. The Cheat river twists lazily through a beautiful valley. Mr. King's landscape is soft and has a delicate charm.

Debbies Selling Candy, Cigarets Today at Girl Scout Tea

I WONDER if there is anyone more pleased that "Christmas comes but once a year" than the debutante? She is having lots of fun these days, of course, but she is having little time for rest. If there is no party—and if you have been watching the lists of entertainments you will know how seldom that is—she must rehearse for the dances she is going to do at the radio ball next Thursday in the William Penn Hotel, not to mention any Christmas preparations of her own she may want to attend to.

Today, a number of the buds are selling candy and cigarets at the Girl Scout tea dance. And speaking of this tea dance, I don't believe I have mentioned the men who are serving on the floor committee, of which Mrs. W. Edgar Reed is chairman. They include Vose Babcock, Oliver Blair, Frank E. Brooks, Jr., Thomas Douglas, James K. Ebbert, Gordon Fisher, Jr., John Fisher, McCook Reed, Pearson Rhodes, Louis Trainer and Pierson Wright.

THERE were two delightful debutante parties yesterday, the tea dance which the Taylor Allderdices gave in the William Penn Hotel for their daughter, Jane, and the ball given in the Pittsburgh Club later by Oliver Evans for his debutante sister, Louise.

Louise's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Oliver Evans, received with their son and daughter, together with their house guests, Elizabeth Geist, of Philadelphia, and Joan Nichols, of Detroit. Louise wore a frock of gold cloth made with a tight bodice and a long, full skirt, and she carried red roses. Mrs. Evans was gowned in white satin made with a long skirt, and Miss Geist also appeared in white satin. Miss Nichols wore black tulle.

Poinsettias, smilax and Christmas greens decorated the ballroom, the stage being banked with cibotiums and poinsettias. There were about 350 guests, I believe.

THE Allderdice tea dance was given for the debutante and the school group in the Italian room of the William Penn Hotel. Jane and her younger sister, Nancy, and her brother, Norman, received with their parents in a room made gay with Christmas decorations. There were two tea tables, the larger one being centerd with a mound of hot house fruit and holly with huge bows of rose and gold ribbon, and lighted with tall red candles. A silver vase of poinsettias and red candles in silver holders adorned the other table.

ONE or two more debutante parties have been added to a calendar that seemed too full to permit any others. Mrs. Edwin S. Fickes is going to give a small buffet supper on January 6 for three of the buds, Jane Allderdice, Mary Margaret Marshall and Harriet Wainwright. And I hear that Mrs. Frank Dravo is planning to give a luncheon for Jane Allderdice and Emily Stuart in the near future.

I MENTIONED the radio ball just a moment ago, and now I want to tell you the names of a few more of those who have taken boxes. They are Mrs. G. Cocke Kimball, Mrs. T. Clifton Jenkins, Mrs. W. Terrell Johnson, Mrs. Herbert A. May, Mrs. Howard H. McClintic, Mrs. Edmund Mudge, Mrs. William C. Robinson, Mrs. Frank S. Willock, Mrs. Helen Hygate Brookes and Emil Winter.

PERHAPS one of the most delightful phases of Christmastime is the reunion of the various members of one's family. Some of those who are coming home are the William Clarke Fuellharts, of Tidioute, who will be the holiday guests of Mrs. Fuellhart's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph W. Marsh. Mrs. Fuellhart was Katherine Modisette Marsh, you know.

The Samuel McClays, of Devon road, will have their daughters and sons-in-law with them, too. The Henry Whittemores, of St. Louis, will come on for the holidays, and so will the junior Murray Smiths, who live in Dayton, O. And Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Yonce, who were married on the last day of October, you remember, will return from their honeymoon abroad in time to be home with the McClays on Christmas morning.

Mrs. Samuel F. Pryor, Jr., the former Mary Taylor Allderdice, isn't coming on until after Christmas. She and her small daughter, Mary Taylor Pryor, will get here a week from tomorrow to spend a few days with her parents, the Taylor Allderdices.

MR. AND MRS. LAWRENCE WENDELL KNAPP, of Bartlett street, announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Mary Kathryn Knapp, to Nielen Otterbein, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Clemens Otterbein, of Cincinnati.

MISS GRETCHEN WANNER, daughter of Mrs. Albert H. Wanner, of Holland avenue, Wilkinsburg, who attends school in the East, has returned for the holidays.

MR. AND MRS. MAX KURTZ, of Sherbrook street, announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Yetta Kurtz, to Benjamin B. Crone, of this city.

THE Girl Reserves of the Sewickley High School will hold their annual cabaret dance Thursday night in the Sewickley Y. W. C. A. The gymnasium will be decorated to represent a pirate ship and the aides will wear pirate slave costumes. There will be a program of specialty dances. Miss Nancy Walters is general chairman for the dance, the proceeds from which will be used toward defraying the expenses of a girl at camp and to pay for sending delegates to the conference.

McKeesport Women Observe Birthday

ITS thirtieth birthday anniversary was observed yesterday by the Woman's Club of McKeesport, the celebration taking the form of a luncheon in the home of Mrs. J. S. Mack, Union avenue. The guests, about 30 in number, were seated at small tables, each one of which was decorated befitting the occasion and the season. There was an exchange of gifts and then a program of original "stunts" from the groups at the several tables. The social committee, composed of Mrs. J. C. G. Fitzhugh, Mrs. George W. Smith, Mrs. George L. Edmundson, Mrs. E. C. Trax, Mrs. George A. Ruoff and Mrs. R. M. Baldridge, had charge for the day.

CHILDREN of both juniors and seniors were guests of the Junior Auxiliary to the Dormont New Century Club at a Christmas party given yesterday in Dormont Masonic Hall. Beginning with games under the leadership of Mrs. J. Harbison Miller, the afternoon's plans also included dances by Mary J. Kunkle, with Mrs. Harold G. Ewens at the piano; readings by Helen Towner, and stories from "Uncle Gimbee." Santa Claus was present with favors for each youngster and there was, of course, a tree and refreshments.

CHILDREN had the spotlight on the program presented yesterday before the Oakland Woman's Club. Jack Withum, Joseph Vogel and Francis Devlin, choir boys from St. Paul's Cathedral, sang Christmas carols, accompanied by Mrs. John Sedlack; Miss Elizabeth Webb played piano solos, there were recitations by Carmelita Jacques and Marjorie Detwiler, Elizabeth Anne Halleck danced and Mrs. Norval R. Daugherty supplemented all this with a group of readings. Fifty toys were brought for the Toy Mission.

THE Authors' Club of Pittsburgh is to have its Christmas party next Saturday at 6:30 o'clock in the Garden Tea Room, Liberty and Center avenues, Shadyside. It will, of course, be a dinner which will be followed by a program in charge of Mrs. F. Orr Johnston. A prize is offered for the author who brings the saddest sonnet and announcement is made to the effect that the one making "the punkest pun" will be duly punished.

MISS GLADYS MARTIN will be hostess for a bridge tea which the Dormont Young Woman's College Club will give for college students next Saturday afternoon. Miss Lois Snyder is chairman of the social committee in charge.

MEETINGS of the Woman's Alliance of the First Unitarian Church have been suspended until January 2 when the Rev. Dr. L. Walter Mason will be the speaker. His subject is "The Coming Renaissance."

MRS. CHARLES S. BANKER heads the ticket committee for the dance which the Sheraden Woman's Club will give in Sherodd Temple next Thursday evening. Serving with Mrs. Banker are Mrs. C. M. Speed, Mrs. James G. Taylor and Mrs. J. H. Barclay.

A NEW committee—that on student membership—has been appointed in the Tuesday Musical Club and is headed by Mrs. Elmer W. Flaccus. Mrs. James H. Greene and Mrs. D. V. Murdoch are its other members.

BISHOP LAUDS YULE CAROL SERVICE

Bishop Herbert Welch, of the Methodist Episcopal conference of Pittsburgh, yesterday described as "excellent" the Hearst Christmas carol concert, to be held Christmas eve from 11 o'clock until midnight.

"I am much interested in the Carol program planned for next Monday and think your plan of printing the words and encouraging the people to sing is an excellent one," Bishop Welch said.

The concert, to be broadcast through a nation-wide network, will come to Pittsburgh through station KDKA. With the Rev. Dr. S. Parkes Cadman, former president of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America, presiding, Father Finn's famous Paulist choir and The Mediaevalists will sing many of the oldest and most beautiful Christmas selections. The Trinity Chimes also will carry the message of Christmas through the air.

But the unusual phase of the concert will be the home concert. The Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph Monday afternoon will carry the words of the carols so that every family in the nation may join in the program.

City Orders Dredging Of Glass Run Creek

Glass Run creek in Hays borough is filling up with debris and a health menace impends, according to Ralph H. Smith, borough solicitor, who appeared before Council yesterday to ask for relief. The borough will be annexed to Pittsburgh next January.

President James F. Malone successfully offered a motion requesting Edward G. Lang, director of the department of public works, to do imperative dredging immediately and to prepare legislation authorizing permanent safeguards.

Fire Damages Home

Fire believed to have been caused by a defective flue caused $100 damage last night to the home of Willard Stickler, 248 Addison street. A pedestrian discovered the blaze and sounded an alarm.

CITY INCREASES RECREATION FUNDS

An addition of $2,500 was made to the bureau of recreation's requested appropriation of $235,637 by Council yesterday after a hearing on the 1929 budget granted to Warren I. Bickford, of the Civic Club of Allegheny County.

Bickford pointed out that the bureau's request for 1929 was about $3,500 higher than last year's. He asked that the larger amount be granted so that provision might be made for new positions.

He declared the bureau next year would have 15 more playgrounds for juveniles and that they would require 15 supervisors and eight caretakers. The $2,500 addition was for extra supplies, he said.

On motion of Daniel Winters, Council revised the appropriation to meet Bickford's requests.

MORE ASKED FOR MUSIC

Will Earhart, director of music, Pittsburgh Board of Education, asked to have $5,000 added to the $13,750 requested appropriation for summer band concerts. The additional fund would be used for more concerts, he said.

John S. Herron asked Earhart to consider ways of saving the amount and suggested an arrangement for avoiding payment to musicians who appear for a concert that is later canceled on account of rain.

Other additions granted were $750 to build steps from Aiken avenue to the Stanton Heights Golf Club and $300 to buy kitchen equipment for Leslie playground, Forty-sixth and Butler streets.

On motion of Harry Little, the bureau of recreation was asked to supervise major baseball fields on the North Side subject to the approval of Mrs. Mary J. Cowley, head of the North Side Playground Association.

Little also arranged for supervision of Burroughs playground to be determined at a future conference between Mrs. Cowley and Edward G. Lang, director of the department of public works.

W. Y. English called for a report from Lang on the 1929 opening date for playgrounds and whether supervision had been provided for Sunday activities.

Man Flees from Cafe As Gun Is Discovered

What is believed to have been an attempt to hold up the American restaurant, 6328 Penn avenue, was frustrated last night when the suspected robber ran from the place after a revolver had been discovered protruding from his pocket. The man, according to James Parros, proprietor, ordered a meal, keeping his right hand in his pocket. Aroused by the "customer's" suspicious actions, Parros approached him and observed the gun in his pocket. The would-be bandit fled from the place, leaving unpaid a 25-cent bill, police say.

Six Seconds For Safety

"Carelessness in driving is a GRAVE fault. Think it over," says the Pittsburgh Motor Club in its safety campaign.

The drive is a special effort to keep the sorrow of death and injury from Pittsburgh homes this Christmas, through the medium of safety "wise cracks," which may be easily remembered during that important six seconds necessary to prevent an accident.

"Remember that 25,775 people were killed in this country last year in auto accidents," the club cautions.

Toohey Slugging Decision Reserved

Decision was reserved by Alderman C. B. Qualley in the case of Corp. Michael J. Onko, state police, charged with slugging by Patrick Toohey, insurgent mine labor leader. Toohey filed the charge earlier in the week, when riot charges against Toohey and John Brophy were quashed by Judge A. B. Reid on motion of District Attorney S. H. Gardner.

Toohey charged State Trooper Onko beat him during the breaking up of a miners' meeting at Renton last March. The hearing was held last night.

Bandits Kill One, Wound One in Phila.

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 22.—(AP)—One man is dead and another wounded as the result of bandit activities last night. Theodore Jackson, 44, assistant manager of a branch office of the Security Title & Trust Co., was shot in the leg by four bandits who seized a bag containing $750 and escaped in an automobile.

Broken furniture, indicating a terrific struggle, was found in the second-story office of the Haney-White Lumber Plant, where Daniel Olson, 65, night watchman, was shot through the head by burglars. The safe had been blown, but little money was kept there.

ALMIRA ROCKEFELLER'S FIANCE ONCE LIVED HERE

M. Roy Jackson, fiance of Almira Rockefeller, grandniece of John D. Rockefeller, is a former Pittsburgher, it was revealed yesterday.

Mrs. William G. Rockefeller, mother of the bride-to-be, gave little information concerning her prospective son-in-law when she announced the engagement a few days ago.

Her announcement was: "Miss Almira Rockefeller is engaged to M. Roy Jackson."

It was disclosed yesterday that Jackson formerly was associated with the Schoen Steel Wheel Company here and was a son-in-law of since that time he has not lived here. At present he makes his home at the Westchester-Biltmore Country Club, Rye, N. Y. He is prominent in Westchester racing and hunting circles and has a married daughter, Mrs. Robert B. Law.

About 1900 Jackson was captain of a University of Pennsylvania football team. He came to Pittsburgh after his graduation. He later became a professional football player on the team of the old

Madge Rages With Anger as She Learns of Carroll Deceiving Her

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Madge Sayre, pretty and young, craves luxuries of life. She meets handsome Carroll Dudley, artist and aviator and "man about town," at a party given by Frances Storrs, a friend. Frances warns Madge against Dudley's professions of love. She dines in his luxurious studio apartment, takes midnight air rides in his plane and accepts his suggestion to pose for him in the nude. After professing his love for her, which she accepts, it develops that he is already married. She is struck by the automobile of Michael Winchester, who falls in love with her. They are married. The event is one of startling magnificence. Madge had previously described to Michael her affair with Dudley. Later a barrier of misunderstanding which neither is able to surmount arises. Michael receives a cable to go to his sister in England. He fails to ask Madge to accompany him. Shortly after in a darkened theater a man takes the seat next to her. "Ecstacy! Ecstacy!" he whispers. It is Dudley's pet name for her. Refusing to be jilted by her coldness, Dudley forces her to ride with him through the park. An agreement is reached based solely on "friendship." She invites him to dinner. She deserts Michael and goes to Carroll. Michael is heartbroken when he discovers Madge has left him. Michael leaves for a trip to Africa in order that he might forget her.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CARROLL'S letter was brief and yet she read it over and over again.

"Ecstasy! You who hold my heart within the softness of your little hands! This is only to tell you that I adore you and the time away from you simply crawls. I count the hours till Saturday, and if I can't bear it, I shall come on Friday. What I really long for is the day that I shall call you my wife, and as I am free through Agnes' death, all we have to wait for is your divorce. Darling! Darling! There are no words to tell you exactly how completely I am all yours —Carroll."

She kissed his signature, while her heart melted towards him.

The second letter slipped to the floor of the car. Picking it up to rescue it from Tam's inquisitive teeth, for a moment Madge saw the world go black. The letter was addressed to Carroll, and printed neatly in the left-hand top corner, with an address in Tarrytown, N. Y., was the name: "Mrs. Agnes Dudley." A quick glance and Madge saw that it was postmarked with the date of the day before.

"But it can't be!" Madge addressed Tam. "It can't be! She's dead!"

Astonishment suddenly gave way to rage so red that Madge was trembling.

"But it must be!" she said hoarsely. "It must be—and he's lied again!"

Without hesitation, without self-excuse, Madge ripped open the envelope and read:

"My sweetly-irresponsible husband:

"I got your address from Hardy, who didn't want to give it to me until I persuaded him that I'd make trouble if he didn't. This is merely to remind you that I can't live on air, and I've not had a penny from you for nearly two months. Don't wait to write, but telegraph me not less than $250 or there is going to be trouble. I won't bore you with any details except to tell you that I am well and received your drunken telegram from Pittsburgh, promising funds which never arrived because you never sent them. Now let me have a little action.

"Your more-than-usually-disgusted wife,

"AGNES."

Madge sank back in the car, exhausted by the violence of her own anger. But what good would it do her to rage? All along she had known what Carroll was. Again and again he had lied and cheated. And yet, weak fool that she had been, he had only to produce a telegram which obviously he had written himself for her to believe in the death of his wife! And for this man, this cad, this liar, inspired only by lust for her beauty, she had given up everything. There was no room for doubt—the letter closed all loopholes through which Carroll might try to escape.

But Madge would make certainty yet more certain. She turned the car and drove back to the postoffice, surprised at her feeling of cold bitterness.

After some delay, Madge was talking in a booth over long-distance to Tarrytown. She imagined, and it did not matter, that Agnes Dudley would hardly remember her voice.

"This is Mr. Dudley's secretary, Mrs. Dudley," Madge said decisively. "When did you hear last from Mr. Dudley?"

"About three days ago," came the voice Madge had heard before. "By the way it was worded I knew he was drunk when he sent it from Pittsburgh. But what I want to know is—when is he sending money? I didn't know he had a secretary, but you can call yourself that if you like, and—"

"The money will be sent," Madge retorted. "But have you been ill, Mrs. Dudley?"

"Why the sudden consideration?" that sneeringly cold voice came over the wire. "I've never been sick—but worried, yes! Who wouldn't be worried when a husband never keeps his promise under any circumstances! And what's he doing in a country village with a secretary? Not that I'm jealous; I'm long past all that, but you can tell him for me that he will support his wife or the law will make him."

"I'll tell him, Mrs. Dudley," Madge promised grimly as she hung up the receiver.

She drove slowly away again toward the farm. What was left in life? She wondered this very much as though it were someone else's problem instead of her own.

Other women had found themselves in similar positions. And then a fierce joy invaded Madge's heart. At least, she had been spared that! At least, she had never been his!

Complete hatred for Carroll, a physical and mental loathing for him possessed Madge, as slowly she drove down the twisting country road. This hatred, she discovered, was quite as strong, quite as intense as the passion she had known when he held her in his arms.

Tam, sitting beside her, pawed for attention.

"Nice Tam!" she said to him.

But Tam caused her to forget her loathing of Carroll in memories of Michael, who had given her this little black friend she loved so dearly.

Suddenly, all emotion for Carroll, even the emotion of hatred, was dead. Instead, she was overwhelmed by a sense of loss—the loss of that chivalrous, trusting man who had given her his name. Poignant remorse was hers, and this was the more stinging because of the realization that remorse had come too late.

The gallant Michael had given her everything—her, a Nobody. He had lavished his wealth on her, and look how she had rewarded him! Far more than his wealth, Michael had trusted her with the honor of his old name—and look how she had betrayed that trust!

"Why! Why! I'm no better than Carroll!" she told herself fiercely.

Her eyes blinded with tears, she managed to pull the car to the side of the road. She flung her arms about Tam and buried her face in his shaggy black coat.

She had lost all. She was utterly alone. In the future she must pass those lonely years as best she might. And in an agony of tears and bitterness she reviewed all that her infatuation had brought upon her.

For an hour or more she sat in the car, abandoned to her grief. Fortunately, the road was an unfrequented one, and no one passed her.

At last, Madge forced herself to be calm. She dried her eyes and drove slowly to the farm.

She put the car in the barn and went slowly to the house. Celeste was playing on the porch with a pair of dull scissors.

"Look, Madge!" her little friend called out. "I've been cutting out pictures! See what a lovely ship!"

Through eyes again wet with tears, Madge saw the photograph of the magnificent yacht that would be carrying Michael far, far away from her ..... out of her life for ever.

CHAPTER XXI.

AS Madge went through the hall Martha came out of the kitchen.

"Come back here a minute," she said, with a note of anxiety in her voice, as she saw Madge's face with the tear-stained cheeks. "I've just made some lemonade."

"Oh, I don't want any, thank you." Madge answered listlessly. But she followed Martha into the big old-fashioned kitchen with its brightly-gleaming pots and pans.

Martha poured out a glass of lemonade and placed it near Madge, who had taken a chair at the table.

"I don't want to be tactless, Madge," she said as she put her hand on Madge's shoulder, "but I know something's wrong, and what's a friend for, my dear, if you can't ask her to help in times of trouble?"

"Oh, it's nothing! Nothing" Madge protested, and then belied her words by burying her face in her arms while sobs convulsed her.

"Don't take on so—now don't, my dear," Martha crooned over her. "And don't tell me anything if you don't want to—but if I can help, you can rely on me, Madge. You can rely on me."

"You're a dear," Madge told her. "But Martha—there are some things—some things that just won't bear talking about."

THE BUTTERFLY AND THE MOTH -:-

Drawn by Dorothy Flack

GAY little butterfly dancing lightly in the spotlight that to her is the sun of the universe. And like the butterfly, her life is short; the hours of bliss when she dances to the thunderous applause that rolls up and around her are numbered. For some day some other butterfly will capture the fancy of the fickle audience, and then—poor little butterfly!

Then she'll do one of two things: She'll either turn into a moth—that still seeks the candlelight of attention, and dance through the flickering flames until her poor little wings are singed and she drops into oblivion, or she'll emerge into a lovelier, more mature butterfly, whom Love has made more beautiful and more desirable.

And this is as it should be! Sometimes, too, Love picks the poor little moth from the dancing flame before her beauty is singed and tarnished and makes of her a lovely thing. But sometimes, too, Love comes too late. Most moths laugh at Love, just as do some butterflies. For to them Love means hardship and drudgery with no gay lights and no applause to feed their vanity.

So be a wise little Butterfly and a wiser little Moth. When Love calls, answer immediately and see Love for the biggest, finest audience of all. The adoration and quiet applause of Love are worth more than the fickle applause of the butterfly lovers. They are fickle and changeable; Love is ever steadfast and adoring. For to the eyes of Love you're always the loveliest of the lovely.

Do You Believe in Santa Claus?

THIS is the magic, mystic moment of the winter solstice, when even a professional cynic must lay down his pen and admit that it's a gay, good old world, after all! That there IS a Santa Claus!

When something gets into the dullest imagination, the bitterest heart or the weariest pulse, and stirs it to a quicker tempo and a joyous rhythm.

Funny! We may laugh at love, sneer at marriage and write satirically of the joys of divorce for 11 months of the year; but just about now something happens to us that completely upsets all our hard-boiled views of life.

HELEN ROWLAND

Somehow, way deep down inside of every one of us, something breaks! and suddenly we are all agog with little tingling thrills of hope and shivers of anticipation.

Secretly, we ALL believe in Santa Claus! Oh, yes, we DO!

We all believe that some day, somewhere, somehow, our dreams will come true! That we shall find the perfect woman or the ideal man, the everlasting love, the glittering success, the heart's content we have always been searching for.

We all believe that life's a Christmas tree, that fate is Santa Claus handing out fairy gifts, and that some day he'll get around to US.

And however deep that belief, that spark of faith, may be buried under disappointment or cynicism or disillusionment, when the Christmas Star comes out, it flames up within us—and we hope again!

* * *

The most hard-boiled virgin secretly hopes and believes that her Prince Charming is somewhere "just around the corner," and that her life will turn out to be just an old-fashioned love story.

The bitterest woman-hater secretly hopes and believes that some day he will find a woman in whom he can have faith, and who doesn't bore him, or madden him!

The wildest flapper secretly hopes and dreams that the NEXT boy friend will be the Fairy Prince, who will offer her his heart and his castle—even if it's only two rooms and a kitchenette with a pink gas stove.

Underneath all our modern cynicism we all believe in the REAL THINGS—"foolish old-fashioned things" like love and romance and loyalty! The things that LAST! The things that we all hope Fate will leave in our Christmas stockings!

For how can you look at the winter stars and hear the Christmas bells and feel the magic in the air—and NOT believe in Santa Claus?

How can you doubt that Life holds a fairy gift for you? Watch the chimney!

For the Lovelorn

Just a Kid

DEAR MISS GALE:

I have read your column for quite a while and now come to you for some advice myself. I met a boy about a month ago and like him very much. He seemed to like me pretty much too. I was at an entertainment at church one time and he came over to me and asked me to sit with him. Another time at a party at church he sat beside me while we were eating. If he didn't like me I don't think he would have sat with me, do you? Now this is my question: All of a sudden he seemed to have stopped liking me, for at another entertainment he walked home with some other girl. I don't know of anything I have said to offend him, so I do not know why he stopped liking me. I asked my sister and she thinks that I am too quiet, for when he walked to the car with me Sunday nights I would have hardly anything to talk about. I, myself, think that this is the reason. If this is the case would you please advise me what to talk about when you're with a boy. In the meantime what could I do to win back his friendship? Is there any special thing I could say or do towards him? Thanking you for your trouble I remain,

JUST A KID.

Try to be friendly and interested when you see him again, and his interest in you may revive. However, both young girls and boys are fickle and it is likely that his interest I simply turned to another. The best way to make a man enjoy talking with you is to find out what interests him most and lead him on to talk about it.

Correct Manners

Table Problems

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

Does the gentleman, the lady or the waiter lift the silver covers from dishes when served in restaurants?

2. Is it the gentleman's place to serve the lady or should she serve herself in restaurants?

3. When a maid (in a private house) brings in a tray of small dishes of vegetables or desserts is it the guest's place to take one, or should the maid place it on the table?

4. Is it proper to say "thank you" to the waiter or maid for just the ordinary service?

READER.

THE waiter lifts the covers of the dishes.

2. The gentleman, the host, serves his guest.

3. The maid should place it on the table.

4. It is not customary to say "Thank you" to the waitress who passes the dishes to you at table, since it is taken for granted that this function is performed automatically, and the guest continues with the conversation.

Bridal Costumes

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

I am about to be married, and as I am boarding with my mother's oldest sister, I wonder if it is her place to give a supper for us, or is it my fiance's sister's place? He is boarding with her.

2. Is it proper for a bride to give her bridesmaid a gift? If it is, what kind shall it be, personal or otherwise?

3. If the bride tells her bridesmaid what color to wear or what style, does the bride pay for her bridesmaid's clothes?

ANXIOUS.

YOUR aunt would be the logical person to give the wedding supper, since this party is given by the bride's family. It would be quite out of order for the sister of your fiance to give it.

2. Yes, it is customary for the bride to give a present to each of her attendants. And the gift is, usually, something rather personal—vanity cases and jewelry are still in the vanguard of popularity. For instance, bracelets have been exceedingly popular this year.

3. No, it is not customary for the bride to pay for the costumes of her attendants. She is supposed to pay for her own, and it is taken for granted that the bride plans the details of the costumes and that the attendants carry out the bride's wishes.

When Shoes Pinch

To ease any part of the boots which press or pinch, a plan which will succeed when everything else has failed, and which is perfectly harmless to the leather is to put the boot on, and dip a piece of flannel in boiling water, wring out and lay on the boot where it presses. Repeat this until the shoe feels easy; then keep the shoe on the foot until it is dry, or you will run the risk of undoing the work.

Glee Party Held Over Dicky's Apparent Defeat

LILLIAN threw open the door of her room before I reached it. "I've been watching for you," she said. "Come in and let me pour oil on your wounds, or perhaps you're like the Hibernian lady who answered condolences upon her blackened eye with the nonchalant rejoinder, 'Just wait till you see Flynn!'"

"For a wonder, neither of us has any need for a surgeon," I returned, laughing. "Dicky was exceedingly truculent when he first came into the room, but when I told him about Edith's telephone message he suddenly began to laugh, and then said he would 'curb her yen for attending to our family affairs.' Then he went to telephone her, and of course I didn't want to come into the hall until he had finished. But when I saw him going out to the tennis court I hurried down here."

Lillian gravely did a Spanish step dance, flourishing an imaginary shawl.

"In other words, victory perches on your banner," she said as she finished. "I never knew anybody as adroit as the Dicky-bird in his ability to hop off a twig, flip a somersault and light again with his beak in the other direction. I'll lay you two to one that an hour from now if anybody taxed him with objecting to your going to the city for the winter and keeping up your work with old Phil, he would swear upon a pyramid of Scripture that he never had said anything of the kind."

"I wouldn't take you at five to one," I told her. I knew only too well how pat was her comment. "But it isn't Dicky's reaction to my going which is troubling me just now. It's how I'm going to manage an apartment this winter without Katie. She and Jim will have to stay out here at the farm, you know."

"I'll tell the well-known world she'll have to stay here," Lillian retorted. "I don't envy her the job, either this winter. Your father's a fastidious epicure, Katherine's a hard-boiled nut on the proper preparation of Junior's food, while your mother-in-law—words fail me! 'If this be treason,'"

She threw out her hand in a mocking gesture, and I could not help laughing, although the truth investing her chatter was distinctly troubling.

"I know," I said dolorously, "and I suppose—"

"Tin that without a preservative," was Lillian's prompt mandate. "I want it to spoil. I'm tired of hearing it. Suppose you stop worrying over Katie and everybody else on the calendar for awhile and pay a little attention to yourself. For instance, this apartment thing. 'Fess up, now, if you hadn't Dicky to consider, and were only thinking of yourself, would you burden yourself with the care of an apartment?"

"No, I suppose I wouldn't," I agreed reluctantly.

"Well, then, let's suppose you are 'free, white and twenty-one.' What would you do this winter?"

"Why, with the work I have on hand there would be only one answer, I suppose. I'd go to a hotel—"

"Get a 'room with bath at two-fifty up,' principally 'up,' and dig in for the winter," she finished. "Exactly. Oh, I know the Dicky-bird's objections to living in a hotel unless it's the kind where you pay a dollar every time a bell-hop looks at you whether he throws in a grin or not. But, old dear, if you'll stop to think—I know it's an effort, but try it—you'll see that it's rather ridiculous to strain at the gnat of Dicky's preferences when you already have swallowed the exceedingly indigestible dromedary of leaving Junior. Snap out of it, old dear. Your judgment is getting lop-sided."

Horoscopes

Sunday, December 23

SUNDAY'S horoscope favors spiritual and mystical preoccupations to the detriment of all else. There are many indications of failure and futility in all other activities, business and personal. The thoughts should be centered in higher ideals and not be allowed to express sarcasm and bitterness.

Those whose birthday it is are on the eve of a year of many small perplexities and annoyances, but they may center their activities on new projects and seek contact with large corporations or secret orders or combinations. In personal matters there should be discretion, lest there be inharmony.

A child born on this day may have a complex nature. While leaning to the highest spiritual ideals, yet its tongue and intensity will need restraint.

There is a Power whose care teaches thy way.
—William Cullen Bryant.

Monday, December 24

MONDAY'S astrological forecast shows many activities and much moving about. There is a prospect of many short journeys and pleasant and profitable occupations. But there is some menace of fraud, subtlety or duplicity, which it is well to be prepared for and circumvent. Beware lest indiscretions lead to slander.

Those whose birthday it is may look for a year of fairly lively conditions, with commensurate financial returns. But there is danger of fraud or deception, possibly in negotiations with large bodies or in secret understandings. Beware of slander through impulse and indiscretion. Much moving about and change is seen.

A child born on this day may be lively, enterprising and generally successful. It may move about much in pursuit of fortune. But it may suffer through subtlety and deceit from others and latent in its own makeup.

How to Keep Well

What to Do in Angina Pectoris Attacks

PAIN in the heart or chest is more distressing than other pains because it seems closer to the foundation of life. Everybody has a dread of "heart disease," so it is easier to worry about heart attacks than about all the other human ailments.

DR. COPELAND.

Angina pectoris is the name given certain terrific pains in the chest. These are likened by many to the symptoms which would appear if the heart were crushed in a vice.

Not all attacks of angina are quite as bad as that. But even in the very mildest forms there are severe pains in the chest.

The sensation may be a sense of pressure, following walking or climbing the stairs. A friend of mine who has an occasional attack says it is brought on at times by getting his hands very cold.

In the mildest attacks there is paleness of the face. There may be faintness, too. Sometimes there is actual loss of consciousness.

Angina is a remarkably common ailment of doctors. Osler states that about one-eighth of all the cases of angina he ever met were doctors. In the worst attack I ever witnessed, a doctor was the sufferer.

For some reason it is particularly prevalent in America. Also it is essentially, although not invariably, a disease of men. However, I saw a woman suffer a very severe attack only a few days ago.

There are three chief exciting causes for the attacks. The most common is physical exertion. Needless to say, if you have a tendency to angina, care must be taken not to over-exercise.

Almost as bad as physical overactivity is mental excitement. The emotions may bring on trouble.

Care must be used in the choice of foods and in the care of the intestines. When there is a tendency to the ailment, fermentation and gas formation are very likely to produce an attack.

Of course every person who is subject to angina pectoris must be made the subject of a careful examination to determine the underlying trouble responsible for it. What I have told you about the exciting causes will suggest that physical and mental moderation are essential to the avoidance of the painful symptoms.

In the attack it is wise to lie down at once, or to half recline and keep quiet. By this I mean to keep as quiet as possible, because the pain is so great it is difficult to keep from writhing in agony.

There are drugs which your doctor will give you to take if the attack comes on when he cannot be reached.

Answers to Health Queries

W. O. P. Q.—Is it advisable to take soda in lukewarm water every morning to keep the bowels regular?

2. Does the use of alcohol in any form agitate the system in a way to cause epileptic trouble?

3. What do you advise for nasal catarrh?

A.—No. Correct your trouble by proper dieting.

2. Alcohol might bring on an attack, but would not produce the disease.

3. A special nose and throat examination is advisable.

A. C. Q.—What would cause continuous pains in the chest? What are the first symptoms of cancer of the breast?

A.—May be due to cold, neuralgia, etc. Have your doctor examine your chest and then definite treatment can be advised. A lump in the breast is usually the first symptom of this trouble.

R. I. S. Q.—I have a funny feeling that comes in my throat soon after eating, causing vomiting. Could this be due to goitre or an enlarged gland?

A.—Probably due to improper digestion. Watch your diet and correct constipation. If the trouble persists see your doctor for examination.

E. V. Q.—Would a lump in the breast of a 25-year-old patient be cancerous? Where would one go for thorough examination and advice—the patient in question living in a locality where careful medical advice is limited?

A.—Such a lump or growth is not necessarily cancerous. It should however have careful and immediate attention. Apply at any hospital for examination.

C. N. S.—Q. Since an operation several years ago I have been suffering with my left leg. It feels tired and has goose flesh on it when I stand. It bothers me at night, jumping and twitching and disturbs my rest; have tried treatment with only temporary relief. What would you advise? Is the trouble due to nerves?

A. Very likely due to neuralgia. Try to locate a possible source of infection. Massage and electricity should be helpful. Have your doctor advice after examination.

SPORT COMMENT by JAMES J. LONG

Ice Scoring Too Low.

Pro Floor Conditions.
How Umpires Miss.
Brains Grid Requisite.

HOCKEY MEN SEEKING MORE GOALS

THE Pittsburgh club isn't the only one in the National Hockey League that has been performing below par in the scoring of goals this season. As a matter of fact, the registration of points has been so light in a general sense, that is all around the double loop, as compared with the marks of previous ice campaigns, that a movement has been started to change the rules in order to provide a remedy.

Lionel Conacher

No other team, it is true, has been suffering from such a goal famine as the Pirates have experienced. Odie Cleghorn's men have the unenviable distinction of being in a class of their own as far as light scoring is concerned. In 13 games played to date they have made only seven goals, all told, against 17 by their opponents, and the lone marker by which they put over their second victory of the season Thursday night was their first in five consecutive contests.

But while they have not shown up so poorly as the Bucs, the other sextets have fallen to such a low average in netting the puck that steps to produce more scoring are deemed advisable.

LIONEL CONACHER, Manager Tommy Gorman and other leading spirits on the New York Americans, who played here Thursday night and incidentally saw their winning streak of five straight broken by the Pirates, are behind the movement to alter the regulations. They plan to offer their proposal at the annual meeting of the National League in April.

The New Yorkers' idea is to change the zones of play, to do away with the blue lines except for a mark in the center of the ice, and to cut out forward passing. The forward pass, according to Conacher and Gorman, was brought from the Pacific Coast League about 10 years ago solely with the object of keeping a lot of old fellows in the game. Gorman wants to go back to the old rules, which permit onside passing and skating a man onside. He believes that if the game were opened up there would be an increase in the rushing attack and consequently in the scoring as well.

FIGURES for the season bear out the contention that scoring has dropped off to an extent that will hurt the popularity of the game if it is not checked. Montreal set the highest mark of the season Thursday night, when the Maroons rolled up six goals against Toronto.

In the two divisions of the league, 66 games have been played up to date, and in those contests 1,923 goals have been registered, or an average of less than three to a game. Five overtime ties have been played without either side scoring, and in 27 other games the defeated side was shut out.

Nick Altrock

NICK ALTROCK, now known only as a baseball comedian, but in his day one of the smartest pitchers in the game, said in commenting upon the scarcity of good pitchers at present that it's a wonder the hurlers are even as good as they are. "Every piece of baseball legislation written into the books in the last 10 years has been against the pitcher," he said. Everything has been done to handicap him. They handcuff and shackle him and then yell about poor pitching. What can pitchers be expected to do with the kind of ball they're using now? It's a wonder to me that some of them havn't been killed by line drives. Pitchers used to be able to field their position, but they can't do so nowadays. The ball is past them before they can take two steps. They haven't a chance to reach it unless it's a bunt.

"ALL they seem to be trying to do in baseball is to get highs into the averages. There never were so many phony .300 hitters in the game than in the last 10 years. Why, some of those fellows who are batting .300 wouldn't be able to hit .250 if they had the old-style ball in use." Nick then called attention to the falling-off in outfielding skill. "The moderns do not improve because they don't practice," he said. "They think that all they've got to do is to catch fly balls. New recruits seem not to know what to do before getting their hands on the ball or what to do after getting hold of it.

"When I was with the White Sox and Fielder Jones was at the peak of his career, he used to go out to the ball park early every morning and spend at least one hour practicing, so that he could do the right thing automatically; so that he could go to the right spot with the crack of the bat and be in a position to throw the instant he made the catch. If the present-day recruits would go out and practice like that you wouldn't see so many mechanical blunders in the major league outfields nor so many runners taking extra bases."

PITTSBURGH basketball men who are holding off an effort to get a professional franchise for this city until the erection of the town hall or some other building with a seating capacity sufficient to make it a paying venture, are finding encouragement for the future in the way the pro sport has caught on in Chicago after a most unpromising start.

George Halas, owner of the Chicago pros, lost money each year prior to the present season, and it looked as if he would have to throw in the towel. But finally he went out and landed such clever players as Honey Russell, Ray Kennedy and Nat Hickey, and the result was that his team became a winner and business is now booming to such an extent that the intake is exceeding expenses for the first time. It all goes to show what a winner will do, and local promoters are confident that when a suitable hall is available a winning pro team will pay here just as well as in Chicago or anywhere else.

Jimmy Dykes

A LARGE percentage of the runners in baseball who are called out by the umpires at the first or second sack are in reality safe, Jimmy Dykes, all-around infield man of the Athletics, asserts. "A good first baseman always takes his foot off the bag as soon as he can," Dykes said in discussing the question with Stan Baumgartner, who once pitched for the same team on which Jimmy now plays. "If he did not he would be spiked at least five times in a game. You know often the play at first is close, when the ball beats the runner to the sack by only a fraction of a second. Well, if the first baseman left his foot on the bag until the ball arrived he would be minus a few toes by the time nine innings were completed. The truth is that he frequently takes it off before the ball arrives, but gets away with it."

JOHNNY EVERS once declared that of the 10,000 runners upon whom he had made plays at second base, probably 3,000 of those waved out were technically safe. Dykes concurs in that statement. "In most double plays from shortstop or from third base to second to first the play at second is not close," he said, "but the relay to first catches the man by only a hairsbreadth or misses him by the same margin.

"The umpire, intent on making the correct decision at first base, sees the ball beating the runner to second by 10 or 15 feet, takes only a quick glance at the action and then shifts his attention to the initial sack. Now, many times, the pivot man on the play, usually

BLUFFITES CAPTURE OPENER

By JESS CARVER.

THE score of the Duquesne-Ohio Northern basketball game on the Bluff court last night was 46-17, with several districts missing as the final count was tabulated. The contest marked the opening of collegiate cage hostilities in this hamlet for 1928-29.

Messrs. Rosenberg, Lubic, Benedict, Stephens and Vernon, Chick Davies' starting quintet, conducted themselves like good college players should. They passed exceptionally well for a first game, and their cutting, pivoting and hoop flipping was up to par. Duquesne, I think, will have a better ball club than last year.

Ohio Northern, completing a three-game invasion of this sovereign territory of Western Pennsylvania was never in the running, in fact, the visitors from dear old Ada, O., were left at the post. Duquesne had a six-point lead before the visitors discovered what it was all about, and when they did come to, the ball game was completely out of their hands. The fact that they were limited to a single field goal in three periods of play indicates the class of the lads from the Buckeye state. I will say, however, that they had nice uniforms. There was a polar bear on the back of the sweat jerseys, but Bruin curled up early. They came here merely for the ride.

DUKES TOO FAST

Through the simple expedient of getting a man free under the hoop, the Dukes stepped off to a substantial advantage. The boys bewildered Ohio with their bullet-like passing. At half time the score was 19-7. When the second half got underway, the local boys opened up with an attack more powerful and much more rampaging than before, and ran the score up to 33 to 7 before the Ohioans broke the scoring ice.

From then on in the game developed into a workout for Duquesne, and with the score 36-9, Chick Davies turned to the press box with this daring declaration:

"Boys, I think the ball game is in."

BELLEFONTE TRIP OFF

Jake (Himself) Bohren, erudite coach at Bellefonte Academy is back in town, bemoaning the fact that the post-season game his club was to have played on the Pacific coast with an all-star team of western prep footballers has been called off.

Old Man Flu was responsible for the cancellation of this game, the backers of the affair refusing to take a chance on a bust. So they wired Jimmy Hughes and told him

Indiana to Get Races, Illinois The Betting

CHICAGO, Dec. 22 — (AP.)—If plans of a group of racing enthusiasts go through, fans may watch a horse race in Indiana and lay and collect their pari-mutuel bets in Illinois.

The race track would be at the Roby Speedway, just across the Illinois line. As Indiana laws prohibit pari-mutuel machines, it is proposed to operate the machines on a lot a half block away, connected to the track with a tunnel.

TABERSKI TOPS GREENLEAF, WINS TITLE

CHICAGO, Dec. 22.—(AP.)—Frank Taberski, the "gray fox of Schenectady," is the first recognized world pocket billiard champion.

The title and the bag of gold that goes with it fell to the gray-thatched shot maker early today when he upset his arch rival, Ralph Greenleaf, of New York, the national champion, in two bitterly fought matches of 125 points each, the finale of the first international tournament at Orchestra Hall.

The scores were 125 to 97 and 125 to 41. Both went 23 innings, and were poorly played.

Greenleaf and Taberski started to play their match Wednesday night, but after Greenleaf had left the playing arena twice and had stalled several times, Taberski unjointed his cue, refused to play and protested the match. The National Billiard Association, sponsor of the tournament, the first international meet, upheld Taberski on one complaint and ordered the match replayed. Greenleaf led, 95 to 81, at the protest.

Last night and early today the match was replayed and so bitter were the players that once, in the first match, Referee Joe Orr, of Chicago, had difficulty in restraining them from halting playing to quarrel.

COCHRAN VICTOR

NEW YORK, Dec. 22.—(AP.)—Playing in the same consistent fashion that he has displayed all through the match, Welker Cochran won the tenth block of his 4,800-point 18.2 balkline billiards exhibition against Jake Schaefer here last night. The block score was: Cochran, 400; Schaefer, 247. Cochran now leads in the match total, 4,000 to 3,556. Thus with only two more blocks to go Cochran's lead is 444 points.

TREMAINE BEATEN

BUFFALO, Dec. 22.—(AP.)—Billy Kowalik, Buffalo, won a decision over Carl Tremaine, Cleveland, in a six-round bout here last night. Kowalik weighed 128 and Tremaine 126.

ASPINWALL HIGH BOASTS GREAT GRID RECORD

By HARRY KECK, Sports Editor.

WONDER how many of the folks hereabouts are aware of the fact that right in Allegheny county there is a high school eleven that has suffered only one defeat in three seasons, the while it has won 25 games and played three scoreless ties? That is the proud record of Aspinwall High School, whose undefeated and untied gridders of the 1928 campaign were banqueted by the Borough Council and school board a few nights ago.

Under the coaching of Arthur McComb, assisted by T. B. Dunbar, Aspinwall has won the Class B scholastic championship of Allegheny County and also permanent possession of the tri-boroughs trophy, involving Aspinwall, Etna and Sharpsburg. Its only defeat in three seasons was inflicted by Edgewood last year, 12 to 7. The record for this year is 10 victories in as many games played, including one by 25 to 6 over Edgewood; last year the count stood eight victories, one defeat and one tie, and the year before seven victories and two scoreless ties. No team has scored more than 12 points against Aspinwall in the three seasons and 19 times in the 29 starts Aspinwall has whitewashed its opponent.

In the three seasons a total of 607 points has been scored by Aspinwall against 75 for its opponents, an average of 20 27-29 against 2 17-29 per game.

Following is Aspinwall's three-year record:

SO proud are the Aspinwall folks of their football proteges that they have bought a plot of ground on the edge of the borough, which will be annexed and on which will be built a playground with a grandstand and other equipment for the school's athletic teams. It will be ready for the next football season, the expense being borne jointly by the borough council and the school board. With the new facilities available, the Aspinwallites see no reason why their school should not continue its proud record over the years to come.

Although they may be merely kidding their public, as appears to be the case, Promoter Tex Rickard and Jack Sharkey had better watch their step in their great play of being sore at each other to the extent that they are telling a lot of things about each other which the fans are willing to believe. One of them is apt to carry the thing a bit too far and any something for which he may be sorry.

Many well-posted boxing men have been waiting for a long time for Sharkey to speak his mind anent his funny-looking "knock-out" defeat by Jack Dempsey in New York, last year, thereby setting the stage for the famous $2,000,000 "long count" return fight between Dempsey and Gene Tunney in Chicago a few months later.

DEMPSEY looked terrible in that meeting with Sharkey and almost suffered a knockout in the first round, when, during the last half minute, the gob ceased trying to outslug Dempsey at the latter's own game and straightened up and boxed, nailing Dempsey with rights that sent the former champion reeling into the ropes. Then, with an easy victory apparently within his grasp, Sharkey went back to fighting again, permitting Dempsey to make a showing that would have been impossible against Sharkey's boxing skill. In the seventh round, following a series of right-hand punches below the belt by Dempsey at close quarters, Sharkey dropped his hands and turned to appeal to the referee, alleging a foul, and, while in this position, was struck a glancing blow with the back of Dempsey's flat and went down holding his midsection and was counted out.

The thing didn't look just right, and many of the scribes at the ringside said as much, only to be hooted down by the Dempsey-mad fans who heard the finish described differently over the radio and thought the eye-witnesses among the newspapermen at the ringside were trying to alibi Sharkey's defeat after having picked him to win over the washed-up former champion. Following his first wail of foul, Sharkey became suddenly silent while Dempsey went on to that big-money shot with Tunney.

That second bout with Tunney never would have materialized if Sharkey, an exceptionally fast and clever boxer for a big fellow, had done his stuff against Dempsey as he is capable of doing it. Dempsey was so unsteady on his legs that it is questionable if he could have gone the limit without falling down if Sharkey had done nothing but make him chase him. Given a chance to stand close and slug and then win by a questionable knockout he was made to appear as if he had some sort of an opportunity of coming back. Many of the skeptics got to figuring the thing out and came to the conclusion that perhaps Sharkey was promised the next crack at Tunney if he would let Dempsey win over him and get that Chicago gelt. His silence after the battle seemed ominous, at any rate. It looked like a cinch that he would meet Tunney this year, and the stage certainly was set for such a battle, but he fooled in the eliminations and Tunney selected poor Tom Heeney as his foil for his farewell appearance in the ring. When that happened the wiseacres sat back waiting for Sharkey to spill his story, if any. It didn't come out. It isn't too late yet. Jack dropped some broad hints in his telegram of denunciation to Rickard the other day. Unless he is kidding the public about his attitude, he may yet get himself sufficiently aroused to say things that will prove interesting from the angle of a trusting young man who was taken for a buggy ride. He may do this even at the expense of hanging himself fatically thereby.

ROVERS BATTLE SWITCH TEAM

TODAY'S GAMES

District League

Pittsburgh Rovers at Union Switch and Signal.

Pittsburgh Celtics at Pittsburgh (Homewood).

By TOM BIRKS

Two games will be staged this afternoon in the District League, and both will bear watching, for the league is wide open and all four clubs involved in today's games have a chance to cop.

Out at the Homewood playgrounds, the Celtics will meet Pittsburgh and seeing that the Celts dusted off Jack Lowther's outfit at Lawrence Park three weeks ago, there is plenty of action going to be flashed when the Green and White tangles with the Blue and White of Pittsburgh.

Pittsburgh must win this game to keep in the running and Dolan has given the boys plenty of hard work following that long rest from league football.

The other game will find the Rovers tangling with the Union Switch and Signal eleven at Swissvale. The last meeting also found the Rovers on the long end of the score and the Switch will be fighting mad today.

SMITH, BOWEN LEAD FIELD

AVALON, Santa Catalina Island, Cal., Dec. 22.—(AP.)—Horton Smith, of Joplin, Mo., and Gwyn Bowen of Portland, Ore., stroked their way into a deadlock at the 27-hole marker for the leadership of the colorful field competing in the $2,500 Santa Catalina Island open. Each turned in a par smashing card of 72.

Thursday's playing professionals showed Walter Hagen and other famous stars of golfdom the way around the puzzling little nine-hole island course, but their lead was by the slight margin of one stroke. Hard on their heels came Harry Cooper, the "cold nerved" young man from Buffalo, N. Y., who showed great form in a 93. Hagen and Charles Guest of Detroit, finished with 94's each.

One stroke behind "the Haig" and Guest was Ben Richter of St. Louis, while Tony Longe of New York, and Al Espinosa of Chicago, each with a 96, tied for seventh place in the standings.

GRIFFITHS SCORES WIN

NEW YORK, Dec. 22.—(AP.) — Sometimes an Irishman can't be licked. Jimmy Maloney, of Boston, and Con O'Kelly battled through 10 torrid rounds at Madison Square Garden last night to a draw.

Maloney, who started his comeback campaign by beating Johnny Risko a short time ago, set out to finish the battle in short order and kept pounding at O'Kelly through the first five rounds to lead by a good margin. The youngster kept right on through the storm, however, and staged a strong comeback in the last half of the fight.

O'Kelly's steady pecking with his left hand tired Maloney, and toward the end the Boston boy quit trying to box and slugged away in a vain attempt for a last-minute knockout. Maloney was warned several times when his heavy body blows landed low.

Tuffy Griffiths, of Sioux City, Ia., started on the road to a comeback after a recent knockout by Jimmy Braddock by defeating Charley Belanger, Winnipeg, Man., light-heavy, in the semi-final. Griffiths gave a display of the kind of fighting that won him his nickname, boring in all the time to carry the decision.

ALL-EAST TEAM PRACTICES AT PALO ALTO

By Howard Harpster

All-America quarterback and member of All-East team.

(Written exclusively for Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.)

PALO ALTO, Cal., Dec. 22.—The All-East football squad moved down to Palo Alto, where it will make its headquarters at the Cardinal Hotel until the day before its clash with the Western team at San Francisco. The trip to Palo Alto, the home of Stanford University, was made in a large bus, and we came by the sky line route, which is one of the most beautiful drives in California.

Howard Harpster

Arriving at Stanford at three o'clock we were shown immediately to the dressing rooms, where we dressed for the afternoon practice, which was held on one of the many practice fields on the Stanford campus.

This great university here at Palo Alto is probably the most beautiful in the entire country, and its campus covers more than 600 acres. The buildings, with only a few exceptions, are just one story high. The athletic plant of the school is complete in every detail and the beautiful bowl where the great teams of Pop Warner perform, seats over 85,000 people.

It was a very wise move of the Eastern coaches, Andy Kerr and Dick Hanley, in moving the squad down here, for in our present location we are away from the gayety and glamour of a large city, and can now concentrate on football and consequently get more out of the practices.

INFLUENZA HITS MAYBERRY

Again the fist of influenza has knocked out a bout between Davey Adelman, of Philadelphia, and Howard Mayberry, of Donora. Last week the pair were scheduled to meet in the main bout at McKeesport, but Adelman was stricken ill two days before the match, and Mayberry knocked out Jack Gentile, a substitute, in the first round. Jim McGirr matched them for next Thursday night, and now Mayberry has the flu.

As a result, McGirr has put the bout on the shelf until the epidemic passes, and instead will offer a double windup of two 10-round bouts next Thursday night. Battling Gizzy, of Donora, will meet Ken Hargrave, of New Kensington, in one of them, and Young Saylor, of Charleroi, will be a principal in another.

The Motor Square Club last night succeeded in closing for the service of Johnny Carey, of Erie, to meet Tug Phillips, of Fayette City, in the semi-final to its Rudy Cedercuddy DeMarco bout Christmas afternoon. Phil Scello originally was booked with Carey, but was knocked out by the latter at McKeesport last Thursday night. DeMarco, incidentally, meets Jack McCarthy, of Chicago, at Davenport, Iowa, next Thursday night.

PANTHERS TO PLAY

UNIONTOWN, Pa., Dec. 22.—Three members of the Pitt varsity quintet on December 26 will participate in a benefit game to be staged here between the U. H. S. team and a bevy of alumni stars. The money will be applied to the local stadium fund. Permission has just been granted Charley Hyatt and Les and Milt Cohen to come here for the game.

FRENCHMAN WINS

BALTIMORE, Md., Dec. 22.—(AP.)—Henri De Wancker, junior lightweight of Paris, France, won the decision over Jack Portney, local boy, in a 12-round go here last night. Skillful boxing, which enabled him to pile up a large point lead, earned the Frenchman the decision.

GAMES TONIGHT.

Pirates at Toronto.

Ottawa at Canadiens.

By CARL W. SHATTO.

THE Pirates, Pittsburgh's ice representatives, left last night for Toronto to greet Freddie Frederickson, their new star, and to battle the Toronto Maple Leafs in a National League game in the Canadian city tonight.

Frederickson, who was obtained from the Boston Bruins Thursday night in exchange for Mickey MacKay and $12,000 in cash, was to go to Toronto from the Hub and to report to Manager Odie Cleghorn upon the Pirates' arrival there this morning.

The new Bucco, one of the best centers and goal getters in the league, is to replace Hib Milks at center in the starting lineup. Pilot Odie announced before his departure last night. Milks is to be shifted to left wing, and Harold Cotton, who has been doing duty at left wing, is to continue his work at that position in the reserve front line. In brief, the Pirates new front line will be Frederickson at center, Milks at left wing and Darragh at right wing, and the reserve line will consist of Drury at center, Cotton at left wing and White at right wing.

Cleghorn is confident that the new arrangements of players will give him two lines of great strength, and he expects the Bucs to use the 4-0 triumph which they scored over the New York Americans here Thursday as the foundation for a winning streak.

The Leafs, the Pirates' foemen tonight, are the strongest and at the same time the weakest club in the circuit. While the Toronto players have showed under the loop pacesetters with amazing ease, and when "out of step" they have fallen victims to the tail-end clubs of the organization. The Bucs' victory chances, therefore, depend upon the Leafs' mental and physical condition.

Toronto was none too strong last season, but much new talent was picked up by the Leafs before the start of the new race, and they now have a sextet that is anything but a setup. At getting goals the Leafs appear second to none, but their defense is only fair and a few goals probably will bring the locals home in front.

Immediately after the game certain Pirate players will go to their homes to spend the Christmas holidays. Joe Miller and Hib Milks are to go to Ottawa, and Harold Cotton, Bert McCaffery, Toots Holway and Duke McCurry will remain in their home town, Toronto. All players have been instructed to report back in Pittsburgh next Wednesday. The probable lineup:

Pirates.		Leafs.
Miller	G	Chabot
McCaffery	R.D.	Smith
Holway	L.D.	Day
Frederickson	C.	Bain
Darragh	R.W.	Bailey
Milks	L.W.	Cox

Pirate spares—Cotton, White, Drury, McKinnon, Smith and McCurry. Leaf spares—Duncan, Carson, Lowrey, Horne.

GARDINER TO PLAY

CHICAGO, Dec. 22.—(AP.)—Herb Gardiner, one of the greatest defense players in hockey, has obtained permission to play with as well as manage the faltering Chicago Blackhawks. Gardiner was released by Les Canadiens of Montreal on condition that he confine his ability to managing the Blackhawks. Les Canadiens, however, have granted Gardiner permission to play.

ASK WAIVERS ON FRASER

DETROIT, Dec. 22.—(AP.)—The Detroit Cougars, National Pro Hockey League team, will ask waivers on Gordon Fraser, substitute defense man, and if no other club claims his service, Fraser will be placed in the lineup of the Detroit Olympics, minor league team, Manager Jack Adams of the Cougars said today.

Bill Brydge, defense man for the Olympics, who entered the Cougar lineup Thursday night to bolster a team made weak by illness, will remain to take Fraser's post, Adams indicated.

AMATEUR ICE LOOP SET

By VERNON SWARTSFAGER

The West Penn Hockey Association is all set for the inaugural of the 1928-29 campaign Monday night. The final touches to the organization were applied at a meeting at Duquesne Garden last night when one club dropped out and two others were admitted, leaving seven clubs making the group.

The new members are Yellow Jackets, sponsored by Roy D. Schooley, Jr., and the Philadelphia Company, while Oakland Y. M. C. A. through its inability to muster together a formidable outfit, dropped out.

The league as it stands is made up of the Jackets, Philadelphia Company, Carnegie Tech, DeMolay Alumni, Shawnox, Duquesne Gardens and Shady Side Academy, the latter sextet meeting the Gardens in the opener next Monday night at 7:30 o'clock on the Duquesne Garden ice.

Each club will be permitted to carry 16 players. Intercollegiate rules will govern the game, which means that three 15-minute periods will be played. The teams finishing one, two and three at the end of the regular season will play off, the second and third placers playing a two-game series, total goals to determine the winner for the right to take on the first place club for the championship and the Post-Gazette trophy and individual medals.

Permanent officers were chosen, Bruce Lafferty being chosen president; Bert P. Taggart, vice president, and Vernon A. Swartsfager, secretary.

The players and managers of the five clubs that submitted their rosters last night follow:

DeMolay — Beebout, Briggs, McKillop, Kain, McGregor, Shaw, Buck Norton, Garner, Wells, Avery, Manager—Norton.

Shawnox—Donaldson, John McSorley, Bob McSorley, Frank McSorley, F. T. Campbell, L. Hobe, Jeffries, Dale, Schadle, Bowser, James, McEwen, Smith, Pubt, Summers, Brooks, Manager—McDonald.

KEYSTONE A. C. NAMES SPORTS DIRECTOR

THE Keystone Athletic Club announces the appointment of Harry Hainsworth, of Buffalo, to direct athletic activities in its new club house in Wood street which is to be officially opened on January 1.

Hainsworth comes to Pittsburgh after a five-year connection with the Buffalo Athletic Club of that city, where he served as athletic director, and his wide experience should well fit him to take hold of the athletic activities which are planned for the Keystone A. C. The newcomer to Pittsburgh has looked over the athletic facilities of the local club and pronounces them as being of the best and is most enthusiastic about the possibilities offered to the membership to take regular exercise and avail themselves of the various athletic features. Hainsworth has a wide knowledge of athletics in general, having been very active in the field of sport before entering the field as a professional.

He has a splendid record as a basketball player, handball player and at one time held many swimming records in his section of the country and Canada. While in charge of the Buffalo Athletic Club athletics he coached three special sports, namely, volleyball, basketball and swimming. The Buffalo A. C. volleyball team won the National Senior A. A. U. championship in 1927 and 1928 under his direction, while the club basketballers had several successful seasons. His representative swimmers captured practically all Niagara Association A. A. U. championships and have shown to advantage in a number of national title events.

Hainsworth will arrive in Pittsburgh next Thursday and immediately will go into conference with Chairman Clarence Overland of the Keystone Athletic Club athletic committee to lay plans for a most pretentious program of athletics, which will include regularly scheduled health classes, handball and squash racquets activities, swimming, boxing and special exercise.

Chet Thomas, Boston, technically knocked out Jackie Morgan, 5 rounds; Johnny Plal, Greenville, knocked out Red Jaderberg, 5 rounds; Joe Corelli, Erie, outpointed Johnny Hahn, Oil City, 4 rounds, and Ray Collins, Erie, outpointed Kid Lyberger, Meadville, 4 rounds.

SPORT COMMENT

By JAMES J. LONG

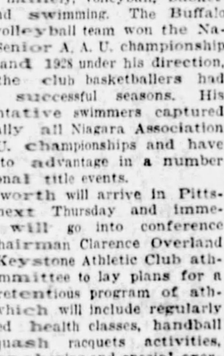
the second baseman, straddles the bag and misses touching it, or does not time his touching of the base to coincide with his catching of the ball. Also in tagging men sliding into the bag the situation often is complicated by the dust raised near the base. In 58 per cent. of the cases the ball is not put on the runner, but passes two or three inches above him. The base runner always makes a squawk, knowing that he was safe, but it gets him nowhere."

YOU may take it from Knute Rockne, who knows a thing or two about football, that weight or strength alone is not sufficient to make a great gridiron player. It takes brains. Rockne uses his famous Four Horsemen, one of whom was Elmer Layden, present Duquesne University coach, to prove his point.

"Those players were great because they had brains, not because of their size," he declared. "Those four men averaged only 158 pounds, whereas I had another backfield averaging 185 pounds that could not be called anything better than a fifth-string outfit. You must have brains to play football.



Knute Rockne

ROCKNE takes the view that the athletic field is more than a playground, that it is a laboratory where young men can have actual experiences in a wholesome environment. "I don't believe that any boy is ready for the game of life until he has bumped around and had a few experiences," the Notre Dame coach remarks. "Football is not intended merely for health or exercise. Wholesome recreation is only a by-product. The big purpose of athletics is outside of those two values. First of all, being on a team representing a school develops the responsibility of representation. The rules must be abided by. Athletic competition teaches fair play. The golden rule is practiced more on the athletic field than in any other place. Besides, participation in athletics removes fear. The player gets a healthy desire to win. I have no time for this idea of playing for fun. Life isn't that way. A determination to win, fairly and squarely, is essential to success. The player learns self-restraint and how to overcome hatred. From all of these experiences he learns to take knocks. He comes back strong after defeat. These are the tests of a young man. Mental and moral courage are what it takes to make a successful player in either football or the game of life."

GOLDENSON FIVE MEETS LIGHTS

By JULIUS LEVIN.

The Allegheny County League will wind up the second week of its schedule tonight when the Goldensons and Duquesne Light passers meet at the South Side Market House.

Inasmuch as both teams use the Market House floor as their home quarters, fans across the river are looking for an interesting battle tonight. The Goldensons are eager to make amends for the six-point defeat they suffered at the hands of the Rauhs last Wednesday night and will be out to vanquish Kemp McNutt's smooth-working floor machine.

Indications are that a large crowd will see the only County League game on the program. Both clubs have large followings on the South Side.

In the preliminary game tonight, the crack Red McMahan Club, a contender for the junior championship this winter, will meet a strong opponent. The McMahans have won their last four games and seven out of their last eight. The first game will start at 8 o'clock.

DRIBBLES

After being reported signed by the Rauhs and Goldensons, George Ramsay, former star center of the Morrys, has agreed to play with the Champion Duquesne Lafayettes in the County League.

The Young Men's Hebrew Association senior and reserve teams will meet Dalton Williams' East Liberty Y. quintets in two Institutional League games at the Y. M. H. A. tonight.

The Stowe Juniors want games with junior teams at home and abroad. Call Federal 1153 and ask for Leo or Frank.

The Allegheny Club, composed of former I. K. S. stars, is booking games at home and abroad with junior teams. Write Mal Schwartz, 1706 Center avenue, or call Atlantic 6422 between 7 and 9 p. m.

TUNNEY TITLE TROPHY BODY MEETS

NEW YORK, Dec. 22.—(AP.)—The Tunney-Muldoon trophy committee, formed to seek the next heavyweight boxing champion, held its first meeting yesterday and when it adjourned Tex Rickard estimated it would be the end of 1929 before any man would emerge with a good claim to the title.

Rickard, as spokesman, said the general plan decided on is to wait until the press decides some man stands out among the heavyweights. Then if the committee members concur in that opinion he will be named champion and his name will be inscribed on the trophy along with the name of all the heavyweight kings from John L. Sullivan down.

There will be no attempt to stage organized tournaments, Rickard said. He and his four colleagues will watch the records of the fighters and consult with newspapermen in arriving at a decision.

Bernard Gimbel was elected chairman at the meeting which was held at luncheon at a hotel after its members had viewed a plaster figure of the trophy. Jeremiah Mahoney, former supreme court judge, was named secretary. The other men in the group are Herbert Bayard Swope, John McEntee Bowman and Rickard.

YANKS' BIG HOME CARD; GIANTS LEAD ON ROAD

By CHARLES J. DOYLE.

A FALLING off of something like 400,000 in gross attendance for the year in the National League doubtless has put the magnates on the alert with the idea of correcting conditions that might stand as a detriment to the professional diamond sport.

In going over the attendance marks for the season it is noted that the Yankees outdrew their 15 contemporaries on the home grounds, but the Giants, a poor attraction at home, had more appeal on the road than any other ball nine.

The Yankee popularity, of course, is due to the Babe Ruth lure, although the champions were so far ahead during a large part of the season that many rooters apparently lost their interest.

Fickle Broadway, together with many staple patrons of the sport, did not go wild over the men of McGraw in the games played at the Polo Grounds, but once the New Yorkers left the family lot they became a big attraction. This is true particularly of their trips to this side of the mountains.

The color that seems always to be the part of a Giant entourage doubtless brought the fans through the turstiles in great numbers. Many lovers of the game in territory hostile to the New York club come out largely with the hope of seeing the Polo Grounders defeated, while many others feel that there will be added excitement with the Giants in town.

A clash of the Pirates and Giants at Forbes Field last year, for instance, was a holiday event, but with the same clubs playing in New York it was just a ball game, as the attendance figures will show.

The Cubs were by far the best home attraction in the National League, and there is a strong likelihood they will be even more popular next season.

The Cardinals played to more people at home than ever before. In view of what happened in St. Louis recently it would not be surprising to see a falling off in attendance during the coming campaign. The Redbirds certainly have not been strengthened since the conclusion of the World Series—at least they have not been enhanced on paper.

Bill McKechnie won't be there to make a lot of good moves, including smart trades, and there will be no Walter Maranville or Tommy Thevenow to plug up a hole that might develop in the short field.

Giants' Training Schedule Is Set

NEW YORK, Dec. 22.—(AP.)—The 1929 spring training trip schedule of the New York Giants calls for the National League runner-up to play 24 games between March 6 and April 15, the day before the championship season opens. The exhibition game schedule opens and closes with college teams furnishing the opposition. The first game is played with the Longhorns of the University of Texas at Austin. The schedule:

March 6, University of Texas at Austin; March 16, 17, Houston (Texas League) at Houston; March 18, Beaumont; March 23, 24, San Antonio (Texas) at San Antonio; March 28, 29, Pittsburgh Pirates at San Antonio; March 30, Chicago White Sox at Fort Worth; March 31, Chicago White Sox at Dallas.

April 1, Shreveport (Texas) at Shreveport; April 2, 3, Cleveland Indians at New Orleans; April 4, Toledo (American Association) at Biloxi; April 6, 7, Memphis (Southern Association) at Memphis; April 8, Washington at Birmingham; April 9, Washington at Augusta; April 10, Washington at Charlotte; April 11, 12, Washington at Washington; April 13, 14, Washington at New York; April 15, Army at West Point.

C. B. L. Marr, Carnouste, Scotland, and H. A. Lovett, Montreal, are finalists in the second flight. Marr defeated W. B. H. Ward of Hartsville, Ohio, 5 and 4, and Lovett eliminated W. H. Watt, Manchester, Mass., 2 and 1 in semi-final matches.

John Layton Sets Two Cue Records

CHICAGO, Dec. 22.—(AP.)—When Johnny Layton won the first world three-cushion billiard title this week, defeating Willie Hoppe, 50 to 23, he estblished two records.

The stocky Missourian, who is as much at home aiming a gun as a billiard cue, ran the block in 24 innings—the shortest game ever played. To hang up the other record he averaged 1 13-50 billiards an inning in the three games he won in the tournament.

"It was the best series of games I ever played," said Layton today.

TORNADO GRID SQUAD NEARS COAST

DEL RIO, Tex., Dec. 22.—(AP.)—Georgia Tech's Golden Tornado, Dixie's hope to dispel the gridiron domination of the Pacific Coast, traveled across the broad sun-baked expanse of Southwest Texas today en route West to meet the University of California in the Rose Bowl on New Year's Day.

The all victorious Southern Conference eleven was due in El Paso at 6:30 p. m., today, after a 24-hour journey across the Lone Star state.

Reports that Bob Durant and Stumpy Thomason, two of the giants of the Tech backfield, were fighting threatened attacks of influenza were partially confirmed when the train made a brief stop at Houston last night. Newspapermen aboard the Sunset Limited said that both were under the squad physician's care.

At each station where the train stopped today, members of the squad limbered up their muscles on the platform. These short jogs, skull sessions and strict adherence to regular hours of sleep and to prescribed food, were the only training measures planned before the scheduled arrival of the team in Los Angeles Sunday afternoon.

BUILDS OFFENSE

PASADENA, Cal., Dec. 22.—(AP.)—Apparently realizing that it will take more than a stout defense to beat the Golden Tornado of Georgia Tech, Coach Niba Price of California, has started to strengthen the Bears' offense for the clash at the Rose Bowl here New Year's Day.

The California mentor got the bolstering up process under way during a strenuous workout of more than two hours here yesterday shortly after the Bear team arrived from the North. He indicated that the next three days would be spent almost entirely in offensive work. Workouts twice daily for an indefinite period starting today have been programmed by Price.

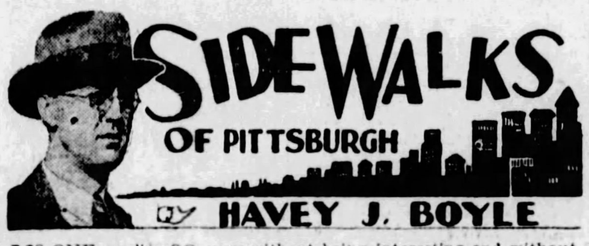
THE BARNHARTS HAVE A CHRISTMAS TREE

The Barnharts, Ruth, Marie and Alma, had this Christmas tree in common with many other youngsters at the little party. Miss Elizabeth Leovy was in charge of arrangements for the party.



NO ONE can live 88 years without being interesting and without having notions that interest less aged men and women. If experience, as the sages point out, is the best teacher, obviously a man two years under 90 and but 12 away from the century mark may be said to own a post-graduate outlook on certain aspects of life.

Under normal conditions, then, the man who attains 88 if he lived in an isolated hut would have something entertaining to say, and if the 88-year-old has not lived in an isolated hut, but rather has crossed the continent innumerable times, crossed the ocean more than 100 times, and traveled around the world eight times, and is associated with theatricals to boot, then the average reporter listens intently as the ripened octogenarian speaks his lines.

All of which is a prelude to a formal introduction. Mr. Sidewalks Reader shake hands with my friend John R. Rogers, 88 years old, and a visitor to our city in advance of a play, "The Trial of Mary Dugan," which comes this way next week. You shake hands with Mr. Rogers, but you suspect a lot of publicity stuff. No, we won't mention the play again, but simply let Mr. John R. Rogers talk out of the wealth of his 88 years' experience in life.

"I HAVE no formula for attaining what you will say is old age," said Mr. Rogers. "I eat what agrees with me, I rest when I'm tired, and I smoke when I feel inclined—which is often, I smoke a pipe and cigars, although I have no prejudice against cigarets except that I prefer the pipe and cigars. I mean I have no prejudice from a health standpoint.

"Whatever you do don't do as I recommend. What agrees with me may kill you. What might kill me may be great for you. For instance, a lot of doctors and a lot of people recommend much water drinking. I have used water only to bathe and shave. I don't believe I ever took a drink of water in my life. I drink lots of milk and when I drink water it is mixed with—well, let's say it's mixed with something. Mind, I'm not arguing against water. I mean, only, I have enjoyed fine health without drinking it.

"ONE of the real reasons for my excellent health, I believe, that could apply to everyone is a great deal of horseback riding. I was a professional rider with Robinson's Circus. That was back in the days when I was a young squirt of 50. I ride now every chance I get. Feel my legs and arms. Solid, eh? That's what horseback riding does for you.

"Now here's a clipping," said Mr. Rogers as he reached for a piece of newspaper writing in his pocket and began reading. I interrupted, knowing Mr. Rogers would appreciate my intrusion. "Your spectacles—where are they? That's small type." Mr. Rogers almost withered me. "I don't use spectacles. Why should I use spectacles?" he demanded. I had no answer and so let it pass.

MR. ROGERS wears a brown derby and carries a riding crop. He has worn such appurtenances since a few days after Noah, scratching his head, had looked at Mrs. Noah on the Ark and said: "I wonder if I brought those two blue shirts along?" Anyway, Mr. Rogers has had his brown derby and riding crop quite a long while.

This evening Mr. Rogers will celebrate his birthday—his eighty-eighth—with a dinner at the home of John B. and Bob Campbell, sons of an illustrious Pittsburgh playwright, Bartley Campbell. In his early days Mr. Rogers and Mr. Campbell were associated together in the theatrical game.

* * *

MR. ROGERS thinks the Younger Generation drinks too much nose-paint and he also thinks there are too many town-criers (as to enunciation) on the U. S. stage.

STRONGER SEX TAKES UP 'BEAUTY' TREATMENTS

Vanity is no longer woman's divine prerogative. The "stronger" sex has claimed the right to undergo nearly all of the same facial and tonsorial embellishments that women receive in beauty parlors.

Men Vain!

FREDERICK A. SUDRO

Men of today are not only as vain as women, but they are equally discriminating in the matter of proper care of hair, face and fingernails. That is why the dirty, unsanitary barber shop of old is passe and the modern, sanitary tonsorial parlor has become as highly respected an institution as a doctor's office.

Thus said Frederick A. Sudro, vice president of the Terminal Barber Shops, who has been in Pittsburgh for some time in connection with his company's installation of a new $40,000 barber shop in the William Penn Hotel.

"The businessman of today wants to be as meticulous with his hair, face and nails as he is with his clothes," Sudro continued. "That is why we have installed equipment in all our 45 shops which makes it possible for us to give him exactly what he wants for his hair, face and nails."

One of the features of the Terminal service is the elimination of the old-fashioned "high-pressure" type of barber. "In our shops the customer is supposed to be able to judge better than the barber what service he wants," Sudro declared.

ZONING LAWS IN EDGEWOOD TESTED

Keller Bros., building supply and coal dealers of Edgewood, who were refused a permit to erect a number of concrete coal bins, have appealed from the decision of the borough's board of adjustment to Common Pleas Court for relief.

On November 5 it is averred that the firm applied to the building inspector for a permit and the building permit was refused because it was alleged the proposed construction conflicts with the zoning ordinance. The case was taken before the board of adjustment and the inspector was sustained.

The property of the concern extends from Edgewood avenue to Chestnut street, a distance of about 1,000 feet. The firm claims that when they originally located there, the community was sparsely built. It is averred in the complaint that the decisions of the inspector and board of adjustment are illegal.

Realty Company Will Play Santa Claus

All a Squirrel Hill boy or girl need do to get a box of Christmas candy this year is to walk into the office of the Forbes and Murray Realty Company, 5820 Forbes street, next Monday. S. A. Brinkman will distribute 1,500 boxes of candy, and also give away several prizes of $5 and $10 gold pieces. He has played Santa Claus like this for the past 10 years.

Will Rogers Says

NEW YORK, Dec. 22.

When the Senate can't think of anything else to argue over, they argue over "which bill will we pass first?" Some think they should pass the cruiser appropriation bill first, and some think they should pass the treaty between France and America, where they say "it's wrong to fight each other."

Being only a taxpayer and having no legal right, might I just suggest that the reason France says it's wrong to fight us is because we have more cruisers than they do.

Now this is only a suggestion, and it may not be based on facts, but perhaps if we had more cruisers than England, they, too, might sign a treaty saying, "What is wrong with you people."

Yours,

WILL.

Will Money Rates Behave; Taylor's Ambition; Slaves.

—By B. C. FORBES—

TROUBLE foreseen is half-averted. Fireworks in Wall street's call money rates have been generally expected. Therefore, they may be largely avoided. That is to say, the 20 and 25 per cent figures feared may not materialize. The writer was one of those who apprehended a real squeeze this month. There has been a real squeeze in time money, with 30-day loans reaching as high as 8¾ per cent. That is an altogether extraordinary charge for time money. Of course, it is not at all certain that even this strong warning will lead to the complete avoiding of pyrotechnics in call rates around the turn of the year.

WHEN stock prices drop in Wall street, virtually all other stock exchanges are affected, even though the stocks dealt in on them may not be related in any way whatsoever to New York Stock Exchange securities. The effect elsewhere is sentimental, but it nevertheless can be very pronounced.

When stocks recently tumbled in Wall street, the now important stock exchanges in Los Angeles and San Francisco immediately were affected. Instead of losing their heads, however, some of the most responsible financial leaders there counselled calm. For example, George I. Cochran, the level-headed president of the Pacific Mutual Life Insurance Company, gave this interview to the Los Angeles Examiner:

"There is a fundamental difference between the condition in the New York stock market and that in Los Angeles.

"Many of the New York stocks have become inflated by speculation, but virtually all of the high-grade local stocks are priced upon an income basis, so that holders of local securities of established concerns will find that these are not overpriced as in the case of many New York issues which are now quoted on a meager income basis."

The remarkable thing is not that the terrifically sudden and severe drop in New York had an echo elsewhere, but that so relatively few holders of stocks were stampeded into throwing them over, regardless of price. Indeed, the public's action has greatly strengthened the confidence of the leading bulls that, after the December-January monetary uncertainties are over the upward movement in stocks will be resumed with vigor. The market's action this week, the bulls say, has been quite encouraging.

DIFFERENT men have different ambitions. One of the most silent figures in New York is Myron C. Taylor, recently elected chairman of the finance committee of the United States Steel Corporation. Outside of his intimates, Mr. Taylor is a person of mystery. The public knows absolutely nothing about him.

Therefore his announcement this week of a gift of $1,500,000 to Cornel University's law school caused astonishment. In one of the remarkably few statements he has ever issued, Mr. Taylor makes this revelation:

"It has long been my desire, if favored by fortune in sufficient measure, to make a substantial contribution to those fields of preparation embodying legal training and research in connection with the law."

Mr. Taylor is one of that growing number of lawyers who have gravitated into big business. It is becoming more and more recognized that a legal training forms an excellent foundation for success in the realm of industry and finance. Mr. Taylor's own predecessor, Judge Gary, was a lawyer, as is the head of another gigantic business enterprise who has lately come very prominently to the front, Owen D. Young.

As business organizations attain larger and larger dimensions, the running of them becomes more complicated. Apparently lawyers often can fill the bill.

ABOUT the busiest man I have ever seen is Herbert Fleishhacker, the California banker who is actively identified with scores of enterprises. He hardly ever has taken a day's respite. Now he has astonished his friends by announcing that he is about to embark on a six-months' tour around the world, during which, he vows, he will pay no attention to business. His intimates are already betting as to how far he will get on his proposed elaborate trip before he turns round and heads back for California.

Some men have allowed the work habit to become so ingrained that they cannot shake it off. Sidney Z. Mitchell, head of Electric Bond and Share, is of this dynamic type. So are A. P. Sloan, president of General Motors; James A. Farrell, president of the Steel corporation; Thomas A. Edison, Gerard Swope, president of General Electric.

INTEREST in aircraft stocks is increasing. Like airships, some will prove able to stay up; others will not.

STOCK MARKET MOVEMENTS NARROW

NEW YORK, Dec. 22.—(AP.)—Stock prices moved within narrow and irregular limits at the opening of today's market, but the main price tendency appeared to be upward. Bethlehem Steel and International Cement each opened a point higher. Radio fell 1¾, and American Locomotive 1, while Schulte Retail Stores declined fractionally to a new low level for the year, at 38, on the persistent, but unconfirmed rumors that the dividend would be cut down or reduced.

UNDERSEA BOAT SAFETY 'LUNG' MADE HERE

By GEORGE H. SNYDER.

PITTSBURGH is supplying the means to avert calamities such as the one following the failure to raise the sunken S-4. In the future, crews of submarines will be able to save the vessels through escape chambers and to make their way to the surface with the aid of submarine escape apparatus known as "The Lung" developed by the United States Navy.

The Mine Safety Appliance Company, of this city, is at present engaged in the manufacture of 700 of he devices for the Navy for issue o the "V" class of submarines. The nventors of "The Lung" have granted a sole license to the company for its manufacture and sale.

The apparatus weighs slightly more than two pounds. Foreign equipment designed for the same purpose weighs from 35 to 100 pounds. "The Lung" was invented by three Navy men, experts in their respective lines of submarines, diving and respiratory apparatus.

IT HAS been satisfactorily used by the Navy in depths as great as 243 feet under conditions similar to those found on emergence from a sunken submarine. All of the existing devices have been tried and the Navy feels the research and tests involved in the perfection of "The Lung" will be more than compensated for by the safety to be secured for crews. "The Lung" has been found to be the most practical device developed to date.

Submarines are to be equipped with an escape chamber at each end. This is a round tank on the deck of the vessel with two doors, one opening into the submarine and one leading to the outside.

IN CASE of a disaster eight of the crew climb into the chamber and close the door. While "The Lungs" are being put on water is admitted into the chamber until the pressure equals that of the sea. This still leaves a small amount of air at the top of the chamber.

Tanks of oxygen are located in the chamber. These are used to fill the breathing apparatus. The door leading to the outside is then opened. A buoy attached to a line is released. One by one the men ascend to the top of the water, holding on to the line. The last man closes the outer door. The remaining men in the submarine allow the water to run from the chamber into the submarine and then make their escape in the same manner.

In the perfection of the device, a problem which has baffled nations for years has been solved. A means has been found to compensate for the varying pressure as the ascent to the surface is made.

AT A depth of 200 feet the water pressure would be about 88 pounds to the square inch. At the surface there is virtually no pressure. A valve has been provided which automatically allows the oxygen to escape as the pressure falls.

This makes it possible for the breathing apparatus to hold the oxygen in a rubber bag. The pressure is always just a little greater than that of the water so that the bag is kept inflated, but it is not allowed to burst.

OTHER apparatus uses heavy tanks to withstand the varying pressure. These were impractical since the amount of equipment needed for the 90 to 100 men on a submarine would take up the entire space in the boat. "The Lung" folds into a small package so that enough for the entire crew can be kept near each escape chamber.

After the men reach the air they may not be through with their "Lungs." In case no rescue boat is at hand they can be used as life preservers until help comes.

Great interest is being displayed by some of the larger foreign nations. This, in the Navy's opinion, is indicative of its potentialities.

INSISTS JAIL BE PLACED IN NEW BUILDING

Proposed erection of a six-story county office building, instead of a 16-story structure, to include the county jail, is a blunder by the county commissioners, it is charged by J. I. Simon, secretary of the Jail Removal Association, in a letter sent to W. L. Mellon.

Mellon, former chairman of the Republican state commitee, is asked to stop the commissioners' program.

Simon, in his letter, states that the Jail Removal Association had been led to believe that the new building at Ross and Diamond streets would be constructed to care for the jail on the upper floors and thus permit the removal of the present jail.

He said that was the plan in 1924, when the first bond issue for a county office building was passed. It was intended to take the proceeds from the sale of the old city hall on Smithfield street, estimated at $1,250,000, together with the $1,100,000 bond issue of 1924, for the erection of a 16-story building.

An additional bond issue of $2,550,000 was authorized in 1928. With these funds the county is going to build a six-story building, allowing for future alterations. Simon said that in 1924 it was estimated the 16-story building could be constructed for $4,750,000.

FOE OF ALSACE PLOTS SHOT IN PARIS

PARIS, Dec. 22.—(AP.) — Shot down because of his success as public prosecutor last May against Alsatian Autonomists, Charles Henri Fachot today lay gravely wounded and his assailant was in the hands of police. The act brought to the rest of France a sudden realization of the persistance of unrest in Alsace.

The assailant gave his name as Georges Benoist, 28, a Strasbourg butcher. Police say that he told the examining magistrate when interrogated after midnight that he was a fervent Autonomist, although he belonged to no political organization. He first conceived the idea of killing M. Fachot after reading Autonomist newspapers at the time of the Colmar trial, at which four men were convicted as leaders of the movement which seeks to separate Alsace and Lorrain from France.

The assailant acted with the greatest coolness. He rang the door bell of the Fachot apartment. As the attorney answered the ring he shot him down and then walked leisurely down three flights of stairs. To other tenants of the building who hurried into the hallway the assailant said:

"There probably has been an accident up there, but I am too busy to investigate it."

Ten hours after the crime, Benoist walked into a police station and said:

"I killed Fachot. Lock me up. I have nothing else to say."

The revolver of Patrolman C. P. Klockgetter, of the Hazelwood Station, which was used in a shooting in a hotel at 4304 Second avenue, Hazelwood, yesterday had been accidentally left in the hotel by Klockgetter early in the evening, it was revealed last night by the homicide squad detectives. Klockgetter has been suspended from duty.

Joseph Lynch, 45, of 4357 Chatsworth street, was shot, police say, by Mrs. Anna Burkhart, who conducts the hotel. She testified yesterday in Morals Court that she mistook the man for a burglar. Mrs. Burkhart, Klockgetter and three boarders are being held.

After leaving the hotel, Klockgetter was injured in an automobile accident in Beechwood boulevard and is in the West Penn Hospital.

Let Kellogg Pact Remain a Peace Declaration, Not a Move That May Involve Us in European Wars

PATRIOTIC and conscientious United States Senators will very carefully scrutinize the "multilateral pact of Paris," also known as the Kellogg peace treaty, to see whether it carries the possibility of entangling us in European quarrels.

The Hearst papers have contended that so far as European nations are concerned, signing the Kellogg pact is nothing but an empty gesture.

They have signed it and gone on gaily piling up armaments, as was frankly admitted by Mussolini and Lloyd George in public addresses on December 8th. The Associated Press cabled reports of these speeches as follows:

MUSSOLINI said: "The truth is that the whole world is again arming itself. The number of bayonets and cannon is constantly increasing, yet everybody speaks of peace. We are all for peace, and if tomorrow other Kellogg treaties were in view, we would hasten to sign them."

LLOYD GEORGE said: "This summer we signed a pact by which we outlawed war, hurling it into the bottomless pit of infamy. What need we do more but to sing the Hallelujah chorus? * * * Since we signed the Kellogg pact, armaments have been steadily growing. * * * As things are now, the nations are headed straight for war, not because anyone wants it, but because no one has the courage to check the runaway horse and the chariot of war."

By their acts and by the utterances of their responsible statesmen, European nations are proving that they mean nothing when they become parties to a treaty renouncing war as an instrument of national policy—whatever that may signify.

* * * *

If the Senate ratifies the Kellogg treaty it WILL mean something FOR THIS COUNTRY.

It will mean an increase in the flood of propaganda to drop our cruiser-building program and rely upon the Kellogg treaty for our defense.

Already a group of League of Nations advocates in this country have presented a petition to the Senate to vote against the cruiser bill on the ground that to add to our armament will be inconsistent with the Kellogg treaty.

In other words, if the Senate ratifies this treaty, our pro-Leaguers and internationalists are going to join the European clamor that we cannot consistently carry out President Coolidge's cruiser-building program—even though that program will not bring us within a hundred thousand tons of the total of British cruisers built or building.

* * * *

But a still larger sacrifice from the United States, as a result of the Kellogg treaty, is expected by our internationalists and by foreign countries. The treaty is looked upon as the means of getting us obligated to assist the League of Nations in its war measures.

If senators are in any doubt about this, let them read the statement made by the well-known British journalist, Wickham Steed, editor of the London Review of Reviews. Discussing the Kellogg treaty in a public speech at Birmingham on October 25, Mr. Steed said:

> "Seeing that any state which violates the covenant of the League is likely also to violate the Paris peace pact, which the United States has signed, AMERICA WILL NO LONGER BE NEUTRAL towards the covenant breaker. Thus the prospect of conflict with America over a League blockade or economic blockade disappears."

* * * *

That is also the thought of the pro-League senators fighting to put the treaty through the Senate. One of them, Senator Bruce, of Maryland, closed an address last Saturday with these words:

> "It seems to me that the joint participation in the treaty of the United States and the other great civilized powers of the earth, at least in some appreciable degree, tends to hasten the entry of the United States into the World Court and the League of Nations, and I shall, therefore, under the determining influence of this thought, vote in favor of ratifying the mighty multilateral Kellogg peace pact, which may the prayers of the pious induce Heaven to prosper far beyond my present expectations.
> "The United States must abandon the unreal, make-believe policies of peace which find their supreme satisfaction in the Kellogg treaty. IT MUST ENTER THE WORLD COURT AND IT MUST ENTER THE LEAGUE OF NATIONS."

* * * *

Why should the United States Senate put this country into a pact in a way which means something to this country, but which means nothing for European countries?

Why should the United States be a party in any way to a pact with countries which are preparing for wars, as their prominent statesmen fear and admit?

Why should the United States run the danger of being drawn into these wars by any sort of combination with these European countries?

Why not allow the Kellogg proclamation to remain a proclamation, as it is now, and to be merely a declaration on the part of the United States in favor of peace, not a move that may involve us in European entanglements?

First Move by Gardner Against Lottery Ring

The first move of District Attorney Samuel H. Gardner to break up the lottery ring in Pittsburgh was made yesterday.

County detectives raided a place in the Hill district and arrested 39 men charged with being implicated in the operation of a lottery. All were Negroes.

This raid was the result of a complaint to the County authorities. Heretofore such cases had been turned over to the Pittsburgh Police Department. The decision to secure action by the county detectives instead of the city police is a result, Mr. Gardner says, of testimony before the recent graft-probing Grand Jury that city police officials were winking at minor law-breaking and encouraging graft.

Whether the District Attorney's contention is correct or not matters little to the man in the street. Through newspapers and other sources of information the average taxpayer has had ample information that lotteries are being operated on a large scale throughout the city and that the principal patrons are persons of limited means. In some cases minors of both sexes have been among the patrons.

While a lottery itself is indefensible, it is especially aggravating when it robs wage earners as these lotteries do. Time and again when these gambling games have been under investigation it has been revealed that very few persons win anything. The schemes are devised to make the return to the investor as meager as possible.

A recent example is that of a lottery that operated in the Hill district for almost a month without a single prize being awarded. During this period thousands of dollars were collected in sums from five cents up. There are other lotteries which sell tickets for a penny.

This evil has grown to such an extent that it must be abolished and the sooner the better. It makes no difference to the public whether this is done by city or county authorities, but when it is accomplished credit will be placed where it is due.

May Use Schenley Oval For Polo Playing Field

Schenley Oval owes its existence to the late Edward M. Bigelow, whose statue stands on the main driveway of Schenley Park. Mr. Bigelow was Director of Public Works when the present park system was established. He designed the oval for amateur race meets and athletic contests of all kinds. It has not only been used for these events for many years, but has done duty as a landing place for aviators before we had flying fields, and as a place for picknickers to enjoy themselves.

The late Mr. Bigelow no doubt smiles down from above as he learns that a new use has been found for this popular recreation ground.

The Schenley Matinee Club, an organization of non-professional horse lovers, who drive and ride their own steeds, has asked the city for jurisdiction over the track. The intention is to present free programs of harness racing and horseback riding and in addition, it is suggested, polo playing may be added to the attractions of the oval.

The addition of polo to the present list of amusements offered to Pittsburgh should add weight to the Matinee Club's request.

O'Hara Township Terror Ends in a Dog-Killing

A stray German police dog, which had been terrorizing residents of O'Hara Township, was killed by Constable R. W. Johnson after it had bitten a woman.

This animal, a large one of its species, had been at large for several weeks, preying upon live stock, especially poultry. Residents of the neighborhood had dubbed it the "Wolf" on account of its large size and ferocity, so a prayer of thanksgiving arose when they learned of its death.

The police dog is a cousin of the wolf and was originally developed in hunting criminals by German police officials. They never thought this animal would become a house dog, and it has been principally in this country that such use has been made of it.

Owners of police dogs have a public responsibility to keep them in control.

New York Day by Day by O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Dec. 22.—Even the confirmed—it takes about 10 years to make you that way—New Yorker is continually surprised at the number of new restaurants that spring up weekly. Fifteen years ago, as an example, there were four restaurants on West Seventy-second street. Today there are 97.

The average number of cafes in the Eating Belt of the 40's is 10 to a block. Most of these are chop houses and quick lunches. In one block of this zone, incidentally, Hawaiian, Turkish, East Indian, Chinese, Japanese and vegetarian restaurants are represented.

The lowest priced meal in town is served at a cellar place on the Bowery, where coffee, bread and a stew are five cents. The most expensive table d'hote is a hideaway on the outskirts, where a French dinner with a full complement of liquor is $20 a plate.

New York is fairly overrun just now with the so-called "home cooking" places featuring hostesses and Ziegfeldian waitresses. Some are decorated with an old world flourish and others merely in chintz, and the prices range from 85 cents to $2.50.

Fifth avenue 10 years ago offered only cafes such as Sherry's, Delmonico's and the like, but today the gastronomical invasion of chain restaurants permits one to dine as economically on the avenue as on Broadway. And the pick of the waitresses—pardon, servers—are assigned there.

The majority of class eating places with a carriage trade are now on Madison and Park avenue. Only east of the avenue does one find cafes that insist on evening dress for patrons or tuck them away behind the obscuring of palms. Every waiter in this area must speak French.

The coffee pots, delicatessens and sandwich parlors over town literally run into thousands. More than 800 kitchens of owl lunch wagons are regularly inspected. And almost every drug store has a counter where breakfast, luncheon and midnight snacks are served.

New York—he's bragging again—is astounding in its independence. Unlike most cities, it is not dependent on a single industry or a group of industries. Over-production of factories, red rust in the wheat fields, frost in the corn belt or a wholesale padlocking of night clubs do not make the slightest dent on the commercial tempo. The only thing that thoroughly upsets New York business is a street parade.

For instance, New York is not regarded as a shoe center, yet twice as many people are making shoes here as in Lynn, Mass. Half as many meat packers are on the job as in Kansas City, Kan. Three times as many people are employed in foundries and machine shops as in Pittsburgh. Furniture making lacks only a few thousand employes to be on equal standing with Grand Rapids. Schnectady is the electrical capital, yet New York employs two-thirds as many people in that industry. It is this diversity that makes the metropolis so indifferent to hoots. No matter what happens in the outland, business goes on as usual.

BAGDAD

By Herbert Kaufman

TAKE a "tour of the world in 80 shop windows." Ramble through the district that stretches from Central Park to St. Patrick's.

The essence of time's richest fancy and deftest skill is held there.

Art speaks in all its dialects—Russian ikons gossip with Tibetan devil masks within earshot of Tanagra figurines and Inca amulets.

Here's a rapier stained with French history, there a panoply of Saracen armor, and yonder a Venetian lantern from the state barge of a Doge.

A Kurdish thief wrenched those peacock titles from the tomb of Tamerlane, and behind this rusting convent grill long forgotten novitiates gazed back upon a lost world.

You can buy Caruso's stage swords from a persuasive Persian whose eclectic judgment has crowded a basement booth with Gothic treasure chests. Cairene tabarets, New England tester-beds and old Murano glass.

The Smyrna Creek boy, in the hole in the wall next door, offers Strasbourg patties, Beluga caviar, and the honey of Hymettus, that "dripped from Nestor's lips."

Poona brasses, Manchu bed panels, an Ausburg corselet and Bulgarian rose ottar—Delft plaques, a black amber bead from David Bey's rosary, Genoese velvets dyed with ruby blood, or illuminated missals—all at your bidding.

The Russian who offers to repair your antique jewelry or will sell his own hereditary trinkets—is a Prince who ruled a province in the Caucasus. And the amazing Kwanyins on his bench were personally collected from Gobi temples.

Laces and leather work, prayer rugs and snuff bottles, Lowestoft services and fragments from the Parthenon! Feast upon their loveliness. Men and women wove their souls into the threads and lines.

The loot of the universe, collected and held within one precious square mile, rendering tribute to the world-conquering dollar! And setting lures for it.

Gentlemen with sufficient magic in the bank may send their signed paper djinns around a single block to invoke a serpentine column from Byzantium, a Raphael from a ducal gallery, or an emerald that blazed on a Moghul's turban.

Play Haroun al Raschid and wander through Bagdad, whose tawdry reality isn't worth a step across the road.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

TOYS in the shop windows—holly at the door—happy people going up and down.

Holidays are made for happy folk. Who remembers those whose hearts are sad? Bitter days for them with memory stumbling, tear-blinded at their side. Thinking of the other days when life was full and sweet.

Here's a verse they'll understand, written by James Ramp:

"When Death has wrapped you in his dull, gray stuff,
"And quieted your laughter and your song,
"I wonder if there will remain in all the world enough
"Beauty to tempt my weary feet along."

Four simple lines, but in them the poet has put the heart's most bitter question. What shall we do when they are gone—how shall we find desire to live this life which seems so full of joy for those more fortunate?

I am thinking of a mother who found that answer. She, too, had lost all that meant beauty for her in life—her only son. For 21 years she and the boy had gone through life together, sharing poverty and pain and joy. They were beyond all telling dear to each other.

Then he died and there was not beauty left in the world "enough to tempt her weary feet along."

Then, one day, passing down the street, she noticed that another lad's hair grew as her boy's hair had grown. And in a young girl's troubled face she noticed the confusion that had made her heart yearn so toward her boy. And presently she found herself noticing on every side little traits that were like him—a clear, young bubble of laughter—the eager fumbling of an untrained young hand—even the foolish socks, the glaring ties her boy had loved—other boys wore those, too.

And so it came to her that beauty had not gone when her boy died.

OH, THESE WOMEN

By Leola Allard

A WOMAN in Chicago was losing her hair, and she heard of a new tonic guaranteed to grow new hair. She used it faithfully. Her own fell out because of a badly administered permanent wave. Now her hair is actually growing in, and it is exactly like her first hair, when she was a baby. It is blonde and curly. And she is still decidedly gray in spots.

She doesn't know whether to have the gray hair burned out or to dye the new blonde curls.

If that isn't a predicament!

Pretty young woman with her mother in a fashionable lunch place in New York. Girl spies handsome man at table across the room. Waves to him and then says to mother when man doesn't stir, "I guess I'll go over there," and she proceeds to do just that.

The man was polite, but distinctly bored.

That's the kind of thing that makes bachelors.

The ugliest woman I ever saw, sitting in a subway train in New York, richly but unbecomingly gowned, and with the most beautiful feet and legs I ever saw, not excepting all the legs I've seen on the stage in the past 10 days. But with that face, there just wasn't anything she could do about them, except dress them carefully, and she wore exquisite stockings and had slippers with smart cut steel buckles.

In a packed toy department of a big store. A woman with three children, herding them alongside of the interesting toy counters. One of them, a boy, of course, reached for a toy. Immediately the mother grabbed him by the hair and pulled him back. He felt it all right and yelled. All the mother did was say in a quiet, but agitated voice, "I'll learn you!"
